Tarzan Texts

Q. In November I sent an order to the House of Greystoke in Kansas City, Mo., for two Canaveral Press books by Edgar Rice Burroughs. I enclosed a check for $6.60 which was later cashed. What can I do to get either the books or a refund? C.H., Wilmington.

A. ACTION LINE talked with Vernell Coriell of the House of Greystoke. He explained that he runs a literary club for admirers of Edgar Rice Burroughs, author of the Tarzan stories. As a favor to members he obtains Burroughs books for them. However, in the case of the two books you ordered, he had to obtain them from Canaveral Press in New York. Canaveral Press usually takes about 60 to 90 days to fill an order, he explained. However, he promised that if he doesn't receive your books from Canaveral Press in a week, he will send you a refund.

Veteran's Benefit

Q. My husband, a World War II veteran, passed away recently. We have a severely retarded boy of 22 years of age. I understand that as a deceased veteran's dependent he might be entitled to a pension. Where can I find out about this? M.B., San Pedro.

A. Check with the contact office at the Veterans Administration Regional Office, 1380 S. Sepulveda Blvd., Los Angeles, 478-3711. Ask about nonservice-connected death pensions given to widows and children of veterans. The deceased veteran must have had at least 90 days in the service and received an honorable discharge. To qualify for the pension, your son must have become permanently incapable of supporting himself before reaching the age of 18. If he does qualify, he will receive a pension until he gets married. As a widow of a deceased veteran, you might also qualify for a pension if your income is low. A spokesman for the VA office says you should make an appointment to see a contact officer. He advises you to bring along copies of your husband's discharge papers, your marriage certificate, your son's birth certificate and a medical statement from your doctor giving details of your son's retardation.

Just Plain Jane

Q. Like so many people in Long Beach, I often talk on the phone to Jane of Value Village. She is so pleasant and has a nice, familiar voice. Could ACTION LINE tell me something about her, and perhaps send me a picture? D.M.C., Long Beach.

A. Jane is the name used by many of the telephone workers soliciting discarded items for Value Village, a thrift store operated by the Long Beach Retarded Children's Foundation. Proceeds from the store, located at 2420 Santa Fe Ave., help support the Long Beach foundation, the Good Shepherd Home of the West in Terra Bella, and Hub Limited, a workshop in Compton for the mentally retarded. A Value Village spokesman said the 40 phone workers are discouraged from forming personal relationships with the public, so most often identify themselves simply as Jane. "The name now has become associated with retarded children, so people always know who we represent. It really has worked out very well this way," the spokesman said.

Help at Home

Q. I am interested in the VISTA program. Where can I find out about it? P.G., Huntington Beach.

A. Contact the Volunteers in Service to America, an agency of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, 312 N. Spring St., Room 834, Los Angeles, 688-5970. VISTA is the domestic counterpart of the overseas Peace Corps. Volunteers sign up for a year and six weeks. After the six-week training period, they are assigned to serve in urban slums, rural areas, Job Corps centers, Indian reservations, migrant labor communities and other poverty areas in the 50 states, Puerto Rico and U.S. Trust Territories. The only restrictions on service are that volunteers must be permanent residents of the United States and be at least 20 years of age — the minimum age used to be 18. There is no upper age limit, and one volunteer is 85. Married couples must serve together. Volunteers are paid a room and board allowance plus $75 a month for expenses. An additional $600 is paid at the end of the volunteer's year of service.

Rustproof

Q. Where can I get an old milk can galvanized? J.T., Long Beach.

A. You can take your milk can to Bufnel Co., a division of Keene Industries, 12521 Los Nietos Road, Santa Fe Springs, 696-6115. Normally, the company does only large orders, such as the steel highway guard rails, but it will make an exception in your case. Contact John Freeman in the galvanizing department to make the arrangements. Freeman explained that in the galvanizing process, the steel is cleaned in a caustic bath or by sandblasting, then pickled in an acid bath and finally dipped into a kettle of molten zinc for a rust resistant coating.

Bucher Testifies in Secret

Court Also Hears Intelligence Officer of Naval Forces

By RICHARD E. MEYER

CORONADO (AP) — The captain of the Pueblo, after four days of sometimes anguished public testimony, spent five hours behind closed doors Friday describing to a Navy court of inquiry further aspects of his ship's capture and the captivity of his crew.

Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher was excused at mid-afternoon from further appearances, subject to recall, and Capt. Thomas L. Dwyer took the stand. Dwyer was chief of staff for intelligence for the commander of U.S. Naval forces in Japan when the Pueblo was seized a year ago by North Koreans.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., charged Friday the Navy is trying to blame Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher for the Pueblo affair rather than the officials who denied him the means to destroy the spy ship's secret equipment. Dominick is a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

A Navy information officer, Capt. Vincent Thomas, held a briefing for newsmen after the day's session. He said everything in Dwyer's testimony and most of Bucher's was classified information, but outlined the nonsecret portion of Bucher's testimony.

THOMAS declined to elaborate on the classified material, other than to say it concerned "the mission and operation of the Pueblo." The convening order of the court says secret sessions may be held only for matters which are classified, which the dictionary defines as requiring protection in the interest of National defense.

Others among Bucher's superiors were to testify behind closed doors into Tuesday. Their statements, the skipper's attorney told newsmen, would be crucial to his client.

The court has told Bucher he is suspected of violating Navy regulations in surrendering his intelligence ship to North Koreans without a fight.

THE COURT of five admirals could recommend anything from medals to court-martial. In response to a newsmen's question, a Navy legal specialist said the severest sentence Bucher could receive from a court-martial would be dismissal from the service and two years in prison.

Thomas said the unclassified information discussed at the closed session included testimony by Bucher that North Koreans discovered "hundreds of signals sent home (by

Toll at 51 Lives; Loss in Millions

State and federal officials declared Los Angeles County a disaster area Friday after a week of almost steady rain which caused a $10 million damage and took up to 51 lives.

Rain from the second of two back-to-back weather fronts spurred renewed flooding, rockslides and mudslides Friday and caused evacuation of some hillside residential areas.

To the north, San Luis Obispo County, hardest hit by the storm, was also declared a disaster area.

THREE persons were killed in rain-caused Los Angeles County traffic accidents and a fourth was missing after falling into a City of Industry drainage ditch.

Officials said Robert Craig Heitrick, 10, was rescued from the flood channel after his brother, Michael, 11, was lost in a vain attempt to save him.

The new deluge, which began late Thursday, provided a double punch to the storm that began last Saturday and killed as many as 47 persons before subsiding Wednesday.

At least $6 million in Southland property damage was reported following that storm. Damage and death figures of 51 killed and more than $10 million lost included the first storm's ravages.

NO HARM AS QUAKE ROCKS SOUTHLAND

Another earthquake shook the Southern California desert Friday night but no damage was reported.

The California Institute of Technology at Pasadena said the quake was an aftershock of Thursday's temblor which measured 5 on the Richter Scale.

Friday night's quake was centered 10 miles south of Twentynine Palms, and had a magnitude of 4.4, a Cal Tech spokesman said. It occurred shortly after 7 o'clock.

Four-Way Talks Start in Paris

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

PARIS, Saturday (AP) — The United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong National Liberation Front begin today their four-way exploration of the road to peace. None of the four has any illusions about the formidable obstacles ahead.

There were expressions of optimism but these were carefully guarded and qualified, and all four principals obviously were prepared for a siege which could last for months.

On the eve of the historic first session on matters of substance, expressions of hope in some cases were tinged with misgivings.

THE South Vietnamese, for example, seemed to hint that too much may have been surrendered in sweeping away procedural difficulties that had stalled the opening of this phase for two months.

From New Zealand, an ally of the Americans and South Vietnamese in the war, came a vague indication of worry about what may be at stake for Asia in the talks.

The talks probably will

Nixon Halts Air Routes for L.B.

President Richard M. Nixon Friday blocked former President Lyndon B. Johnson's award of new transpacific air routes, affecting two proposed Hawaii flights out of Long Beach airport.

A spokesman for the White House said Nixon also wants to take a look at other actions taken by his predecessor.

Johnson's awards gave Braniff, Continental, Flying Tiger, Northwest, Pan-American and Trans World Airlines important new routes which had been recommended for other airlines by a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner.

NIXON SAID in a letter to John H. Cronker Jr., CAB chairman, that he had "come to the conclusion that it is both appropriate and necessary for me to rescind the prior presidential action taken and recall the matter for my further review and decision."

Nixon's act came in the wake of criticism, some of it in Congress, linking Johnson's awards with political friends connected with the winning airlines.

Involved at Long Beach are plans for three flights daily to Hawaii by Western and one flight daily to Hawaii and Japan by Northwest.

WESTERN had planned the service to start sometime this year. Northwest had planned its new flights to start sometime this summer — if the city approves and can provide facilities.

Regardless of how the controversy comes out, it is not expected to affect master development plans for the airport now under consideration by the City Council.

Nixon's canceling of the airline awards followed his recall of President Johnson's nominations for hundreds of postmasters and five federal judgeships.

PRESS secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the White House also is going to go into a news report that the administration might do something about a $25-million grant to the Illinois Central Railroad by the Department of Transportation.

The report noted that the railroad is hiring Johnson's secretary of transportation, Alan Boyd, as president.

EIGHT MEN, FOUR WOMEN

Sirhan Jury Is Approved

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

After nine days of questioning, an eight-man, four-woman jury was seated Friday in the trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, accused assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The surprise acceptance of the panel by both defense and prosecution attorneys came a week earlier than expected and only after the lone Negro member of the panel was ousted by prosecution peremptory challenge.

The case was recessed by Los Angeles Superior

Court Judge Herbert V. Walker until Wednesday to allow counsel to prepare arguments on a defense motion to quash the Grand Jury indictment of the 24-year-old Jordanian immigrant.

Defense attorneys claim the Grand Jury members are "friends" nominated by judges, thereby a "blue ribbon" panel without minority members and consequently unconstitutional.

The motion, submitted in the early days of the trial which began Jan. 7, will be argued Wednesday. However, chief defense counsel Grant Cooper said the arguments will take more than one day.

"I can't say how long. There probably will be additional testimony. But it will take more than just Wednesday," he said.

Six alternate jurors must also be selected.

The new jury panel, which will not be sworn in until after the motion is argued and ruled on, was not ordered to return to court until Thursday. Even then, Judge Walker added, "don't bring your suitcases. I don't think you'll be locked up Thursday night."

The jury panel will be sequestered from the time they are sworn until the case is decided.

In admonishing them not to discuss the case with anyone, Judge Walker added, "and keep your health."

Both prosecution and defense attorneys claimed they were "pleased" with the jury panel.

John Howard, one of the prosecution attorneys, claimed the sex split of four women and eight men was sufficient.

If it were less... fewer women... we wouldn't

SAIGON Saturday — Communists shot down two U.S. helicopters, one of them a Marine regimental command craft and the other a clearly marked medical helicopter, in separate incidents that killed 15

INTERNATIONAL

American troops, military spokesmen reported today. One of the victims was the commander of the 3rd Marine Regiment, Col. Michael M. Spark, 41, of New York City.

The military spokesmen said Spark and seven other men, including a battalion commander, were killed when their regimental command helicopter was shot down Jan. 15 about 50 miles southwest of Da Nang. Announcement of the loss was withheld pending notification of the victims' next of kin. Seven Americans, including three wounded GIs, were killed Thursday when a rocket struck a medical helicopter as it was hoisting a wounded GI from the jungle about 250 miles north of Saigon. The two crashes raised U.S. helicopter losses in the air war to 999. The crash of the Marine craft had been incorporated into the figures at the time of the crash, although details of the crash were withheld until today.

HELD DOWN WAR

WASHINGTON — Former President Johnson "about a year ago" rejected strong suggestions that he expand the Vietnam war into Cambodia and "perhaps Laos and possible North Vietnam," Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Friday. Mansfield said then Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford persuaded Johnson to turn down the idea, which he said had been pushed by "people in very significant positions." The Democratic leader, during a series of speeches on the senate floor eulogizing Clifford, said: "Secretary Clifford had a great deal to do with keeping the war in Vietnam from expanding into Laos, Cambodia and perhaps North Vietnam." He did not elaborate.

Top Red Diplomat in The Hague Defects

THE HAGUE — The top diplomat from Red China in The Hague has defected and won temporary asylum in the Netherlands, the Dutch Justice Ministry said Friday. The Dutch radio gave a cloak-and-dagger aspect to the case with a broadcast report that he quit the Peking regime after being ordered home to account for the death here of a Chinese scientist said to have sold a secret nerve-gas formula to U.S. agents. The Justice Ministry said Liao Ho Shu, temporary charge d'affaires to the Netherlands, asked and was granted permission for a limited stay in the country. There was no word on when Liao defected.

Italy Decides to Recognize Red China

ROME — Italy's Socialist Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni announced Friday night the Italian government has decided to recognize Red China. He said he would soon face Parliament with a decision on the problems connected with it. In his first major statement of policy since he took office a month ago, Nenni said the time had come for Italy to establish diplomatic relations with Peking. Before Nenni took the floor in the chamber, Christian Democrat Premier Mariano Rumor said the foreign minister would express "the political judgment of the government."

Disorders Close University of Madrid

MADRID — Gen. Francisco Franco declared a three-month state of emergency throughout Spain Friday because of disorders. The government announced, just before the signing of the decree, that the University of Madrid was closed because of continuing student disorders. "Before the growing situation of disorder and indiscipline seen in the University of Madrid, making impossible the development of academic work, the government committee in its session Friday has agreed on the temporary suspension of classes and other academic activities in the schools." The school will reopen, he said when order can be assured.

Clay Trial Defense Witness 'Afraid'

NEW ORLEANS — Defense lawyers said Friday one of their most important witnesses is hiding in Iowa, afraid to return to New Orleans to testify for Clay Shaw in his trial on a charge of conspiring to murder President John F. Kennedy. The witness, Mrs. Harold McMaines, in sworn testimony last year flatly contradicted a prosecution witness. In Des Moines, Mrs. McMaines' attorney said she is hiding, afraid to return for the trial. No reason was given for her fear. Mrs. McMaines had contradicted testimony of Perry Raymond Russo, who said after his memory was refreshed by hypnosis, that he heard Shaw and two other men plotting to kill the president. Russo said he took Mrs. McMaines, then Sandra Moffett, to the party. In her deposition, Mrs. McMaines denied going to the party with him.

Bevel Denied Role in Ray Defense

MEMPHIS — Criminal Court Judge W. Preston Battle told the Rev. James Bevel Friday he may not help defend James Earl Ray against a murder charge in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. because Bevel is not a lawyer. Bevel, formerly associated with King, says he has evidence which would acquit Ray. Bevel, an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which was founded by King, had asked court permission to associate himself with Ray's legal defense, but was rejected because he is not a lawyer. A law degree is required to practice law in Tennessee. Bevel said he could prove "within 30 minutes" it would have been impossible for Ray to have assassinated Dr. King, but declined to disclose the nature of the evidence.

Britain Warned on Arming Malaysia

WASHINGTON — The United States has urged the British government not to sell arms, including a supersonic Lightning fighter plane, to Malaysia lest such action start an arms race in Southeast Asia. The Malaysian government, anticipating Britain's 1971 pull-out from that area, is reported considering rival offers from French and British aircraft makers for an air defense system. "Our embassy in London," said press officer Robert J. McCloskey, "was instructed to discuss this problem with the British government with a view to preventing an arms race in that area."

1,200 Jersey Teachers Defy Court

JERSEY CITY — Twelve-hundred school teachers defied a court injunction against their strike Friday and kept 35,000 students out of school here for the second straight day. The teachers stayed out in defiance of a Superior Court order against the strike issued Thursday. The Board of Education made no move to enforce the injunction. "We prefer to see how things work out at the negotiating table," a board spokesman said. Negotiations resumed late Friday to end the walkout which was called to enforce teacher demands for more money, but little progress was reported.

'SILVER' DOLLARS

WASHINGTON — Outgoing Treasury Department officials have recommended to Congress that it okay the minting of a silverless silver dollar. The coin would be the same diameter and thickness but would be a copper-nickel sandwich coin similar to quarters now being produced. Real silver dollars have not been produced since the 1930s but there has been growing interest among vending machine manufacturers and gambling casino operators, in resuming production of a dollar coin, with or without silver content. No position has been taken on the matter by the Treasury's new chieftains.

Skyjacker a Navy Deserter

Combined News Services

A Navy deserter who said he didn't want to kill in Vietnam hijacked a National Airlines jet to Cuba Friday, forcing along 46 other persons, including a grieving widow taking her husband's body home. National Stewardess Kim Tatum said four minutes after the plane departed Key West for Miami the hijacker "grabbed me around the neck and put a knife to my neck with the other hand" and demanded the flight be diverted to Cuba. The man jammed himself and Miss Tatum into a rear corner of the passenger compartment and had the hostesses relay his orders to the pilot in the cockpit. Stewardess Sue Morrill said the hijacker told her he was a 19-year-old American who had deserted from the Navy at San Diego. Miss Morrill said he told her: "I don't want to kill. I don't want to go to Vietnam."

The 22-year-old stewardess said the hijacker was "fidgety" and appeared reluctant to walk down the landing steps once they arrived at Havana's Jose Marti Airport. He hesitated when he saw the uniformed Cuban soldiers waiting for him at the bottom of the stairs, she said. "He didn't want to leave. He almost had tears in his eyes. It was the type of deal where he didn't know what he wanted to do," Miss Morrill said the air pirate had shaggy, but not long hair, and was dressed in tight slacks and sport shirt. All but one of the passengers were ordered off the plane and bused to Varadero where they were to be picked up later by a chartered plane sent from Miami.

Allowed to accompany the crew was Mrs. Leif E. Deskins who was taking her husband's body back to their home in Belfry, Ky. Deskins died while vacationing in this tropical island city just 90 miles from Cuba. The hijacking was the eighth flight diverted to Cuba since the first of the year.

The designation of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge as chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks on Vietnam will not be submitted to the Senate for approval, the White House said Friday. BOYS TOWN

Victor Steele, 17, a senior from Toledo, Ohio, was elected the 68th mayor of Boys Town, Neb. in elections held Friday. The new mayor accomplished a rare feat, winning on a write-in campaign. He received 135 write-in votes to lead a 10-man ballot. He has been a resident of Boys Town since 1964.

Actor Rory Calhoun filed suit for divorce from Lita Baron in Santa Monica Superior Court Friday, alleging adultery and extreme cruelty. The Calhouns, married in 1948, have three daughters aged 8 to 12. They separated Dec. 31. The 47-year-old actor asked for custody of the children.

FREUD DIES

Oliver Freud, 77, son of the late Dr. Sigmund Freud, died Friday at North Adams, Mass. Hospital. Freud was the third of six Viennese-born children of Dr. Freud, the originator of psychoanalysis and author of numerous books on the theory of dreams and the subconscious. Freud underwent abdominal surgery in the hospital earlier this month. He was a retired structural engineer who had worked as a substitute teacher before moving in 1964 to Williams-town, where he lived with his wife, Henny.

DRAMA AWARD

Tennessee Williams, who recently described his life as one of "desperation," has been named recipient of the National Institute of Arts and Letters gold medal for drama, the nation's highest award in the theatrical field. William Maxwell, president of the Congress-chartered institute, said Williams will be presented with the award at a N.Y. convocation May 21 along with artist Leonard Baskin who will receive the institute's gold medal for graphic art.

DANNY THE RED

Daniel (Danny the Red) Cohn-Bendit, German-born leader of last spring's Paris student revolt, was found guilty of disorderly conduct and breach of the peace by a West German appeals court Friday. Orange County Man's Federal Post Delayed

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — An Orange County man's nomination as a federal civil service commissioner was delayed by a Senate panel Friday because of his controversial "Creative Society" directives to state civil service employees.

The Senate post office and civil service committee tabled the nomination of James E. Johnson until it could obtain the full text of a 1968 memorandum issued by Johnson as state director of veterans' affairs.

Under sharp questioning by members of the committee, Johnson said, "I have lived to regret this unfortunate statement."

Johnson's memorandum to members of his department enjoined his employees to "include the philosophy and policies of their staff meetings."

The "Creative Society" in "In order for the 'Creative Society' to flourish, all persons in state government must think this way."

Johnson was pointedly informed by Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, that issuance of such a statement to federal employees would be a violation of federal statutes.

Johnson, a Negro appointed to the veterans post by Gov. Ronald Reagan, told the committee that his memorandum had been taken out of context in newspaper accounts when it came to light last year. He said it had been intended only for his eight top aides.

But several senators pointed out the phrase mentioning "all persons in state government."

Under questioning by senators, Johnson denied membership in the right-wing John Birch Society.

However, he said he had been asked to join the group by state Sen. John Schmitz, R-Tustin. Schmitz, an admitted JBS member, was one of Johnson's references for the federal post to which he was nominated by President Richard M. Nixon.

Johnson said he was told to obtain references from his state senator as well as his congressman, Rep. James Utt, R-Santa Ana.

Johnson, 42, was Reagan's finance committee chairman when Reagan ran for governor under the "Creative Society" banner in 1966. He was an insurance agent at the time, following 20 years of service in the Marine Corps.

Committee staff members said Johnson's nomination probably will be taken up by the committee again next week.

STORM

Glendora caused evacuation of some posh hillside sections, causing as much as $2.78-million damage.

A CITY official said 24 homes were destroyed, 131 severely damaged and 45 others slightly damaged. Homes in the area are valued up to $70,000.

In Long Beach, meanwhile, at least two inches of rain were recorded by early today and small craft warnings were up from Pt. Concepcion to the Mexican border.

The Coast Guard ordered at least one tug boat back to harbor after it was spotted foundering in the San Pedro Channel between the mainland and Santa Catalina Island. Boat traffic between the mainland and resort island was halted because of machine seas and gale-strength winds.

Weather Bureau spokesmen forecast continuation of the storm through at least tonight and said seas are not expected to calm before the Pacific-bred storm subsides.

SOUTHLAND snow levels were above 6,500 feet, where mountain observers reported a white, wonderful skiers' paradise.

But reports from California's Central Valley were anything but wonderful with U.S. Army Corps of Engineers spokesmen saying at least $10 million damage was inflicted on levees, river bypasses and flood control channels.

A mountain of mud perched precariously at the construction site of the Harbor Freeway connection to the Vincent Thomas Bridge in San Pedro. Onlookers said minor slides were observed, and officials warned the whole cut-away hillside might topple if torrential rain continues along coastal areas.

STREETS AND freeways were snarled by a rash of mostly minor traffic accidents. A gasoline tanker carrying 60,000 gallons of fuel overturned on the rain-slick San Diego Freeway in West Los Angeles, creating a "major emergency" and critically injuring its two occupants.

Alvin P. Meyers, regional director of the Small Business Administration, said any Los Angeles County resident with flood or mud damage to his house will qualify for an emergency loan under the federal government's disaster area declaration.

Ex-Policeman Gets 9 Months on 'Pot' Count

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard R. Bergess, who was fired as a police sergeant after smoking marijuana on the steps of the Hall of Justice, was sentenced Friday to nine months in jail for the same incident.

Bergess, nicknamed "Sergeant Sunshine," presented a bouquet of roses to Superior Court Judge Robert Drewes after the sentencing and announced he would appeal.

Oppose Razing L.A. Bouthouse

Strong opposition to tearing down the bouthouse at Mac Arthur Park in Los Angeles was voiced Friday by City Councilman Thomas Bradley.

Bradley said if there are problems with the existing concessionaire, the Department of Recreation and Parks should find a new tenant.

He also said there is a matter for "real concern" in other actions of the Park Commission, including a proposal to sell Camp High Sierra.

Boy Saved, 1 Missing in Channel

"My brother is dead," a 10-year-old boy told sheriff's deputies late Friday, minutes after he was pulled from the swirling waters of the San Jose Creek flood channel in Industry.

Robert Craig Heitrick was in good condition at Heartland Hospital, Baldwin Park, where he was taken following his rescue.

His brother, Michael James, 11, was still missing and presumed drowned police said. They are the sons of Mrs. Ethel Mae Heitrick, of Hacienda Heights, near Whittier.

Robert told deputies he and Michael were wading in the creek near their home about 4 p.m. when Michael was pulled out into the middle and swept away.

DEPUTIES from Industry station said Robert splashed into the water to help his brother but both were carried down the wash which empties into the San Gabriel River near the Pomona Freeway.

Robert was found about five miles from where they entered the water by Mrs. Dorothy Lawson, 24, who heard a report on the radio about the boys being lost and had walked into her backyard from where she could see the creek.

Mrs. Lawson said she saw the boy struggling and called neighbors who pulled him to safety.

Harvey Set for Union Meeting

Negotiations are scheduled to resume at 10 a.m. today between the United Steelworkers of America and the Harvey Aluminum Co. in Torrance.

It will be the first meeting between the two sides since Sunday, when union members voted to strike in a dispute over wages, fringe benefits and working conditions.

Company officials earlier offered the union a three-year contract worth an estimated 50 cents an hour, but the steelworkers rejected the package.

Union officials said production in the plant has been brought to a virtual standstill by the walkout, second at the facility in less than four years.

Doctor Denies Bilk Charge

A 74-year-old Los Angeles physician Friday pleaded innocent to charges of attempted grand theft for the alleged illegal use of drugs to alleviate or cure cancer.

Dr. Maurice H. Kowan, also charged with violating the state Cancer Control Act, purportedly represented to a patient that a drug made from the extract of apricot pits, laetriles, would remedy cancer.

Kowan was indicted by the county grand jury last Sept. 13. Superior Court Judge John L. Cole ordered Kowan to return on Feb. 7 for setting of a trial date after he denied motions to dismiss the charges.

Judge Calls Mistrial in Shepard Hearing

A hung jury forced a mistrial Friday in the conspiracy-bribery trial against Los Angeles City Councilman Thomas D. Shepard.

The seven-man, five-woman jury told Superior Court Judge George M. Dell it could not reach a verdict on four bribery counts and one count of conspiracy against the 43-year-old councilman.

A date for the retrial will be set Feb. 7.

Shepard was indicted by the County Grand Jury Sept. 26 after the panel's investigation into alleged irregularities in San Fernando Valley zoning cases.

Defense Attorney John T. La Follette said he would "prefer complete acquittal," but that the prosecution hadn't proved its case "according to the jury so far."

LA FOLLETTE noted that Dell dropped four of the eight bribery counts against Shepard on Thursday. He added that because of other cases involving different city officials, Shepard was "tried under adverse circumstances."

Three of the counts centered on a $16,700 in alleged payoffs to Shepard or his friends in the form of campaign contributions or loans.

The fourth bribery and conspiracy count dealt with a purported $21,000 payment to obtain the lifting of Mayor Sam Yorty's veto on one of the zoning matters.

THE MOST important indictment against Shepard, who had represented San Fernando Valley's Third District since 1961 involved the rezoning of seven acres in Canoga Park in 1964 to facilitate construction of an apartment house. It never was built.

The planning commission had recommended against rezoning the Canoga Park property, but its decision was overridden by the city council. Yorty vetoed the council's action but later withdrew his veto.

Officials Ban Sale of All Raw Milk

By BILL MAYER
From Our L.A. Bureau

The County Health Department issued an order Friday banning sale of unpasteurized milk in Los Angeles despite Supervisor Frank Bonelli's plea for a two-week delay.

Dr. Gerald A. Heibred, health department chief, said raw milk may cause a fatal disease known as "Q" fever.

The sale ban, Heibred said, resulted from an opinion by County Counsel John Maharg, which in effect placed legal responsibility with the health department.

Bonelli said he understood there is no current incidence of "Q" fever, and saw no harm in postponing action a few days so both sides could be heard.

AT A PRESS conference Friday Heibred conceded there have been no reports of the disease in more than two years.

But there is a danger," he said. "Laboratory tests have been conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service in Atlanta, Ga., and the National Institutes of Health laboratories at Hamilton, Mont.

"Both labs show raw milk, including certified raw milk in Los Angeles County, contains the fever organism."

The order will particularly affect a number of dairies which specialize in the unpasteurized product, popular with some people who believe milk in its natural state is more beneficial.

In answer to a newsman's question, Heibred said only 4,000 gallons of unpasteurized milks are sold daily in Los Angeles County.

Total milk sale exceeds a million gallons daily, he said.

Friars Club Convictions are Upheld

A U.S. District Court judge has ruled conspiracy convictions of four men in the Friars Club card cheating case were valid.

The ruling came Friday at the end of a two-day hearing in which Judge William P. Gray refused to grant new trials.

The men were Las Vegas developer Maurice D. Friedman, 52; Benjamin Teitelbaum, 53; Manuel "Ricky" Jacobs, 48, and John Rosselli, 62.

They were charged with cheating movie stars and wealthy businessmen of $400,000 in rigged gin rummy games in the Beverly Hills club.

However, Judge Gray this week granted a judgment of acquittal for a fifth defendant, T. Warner Richardson, 52, a former Las Vegas casino operator.

The card cheating allegedly occurred from 1962 to 1967.

Second-Term Win Forecast for Reagan

Associated Press

The incoming Republican state chairman predicted Friday that Gov. Ronald Reagan will run for a second term — and win it.

"There'll be one disappointed state chairman if he doesn't," said Dennis Carpenter, Newport Beach attorney and former FBI agent who is scheduled to be elected chairman at Sunday's meeting of the GOP State Central Committee. Reagan has declined to announce his plans, but he says he doesn't want to leave a job "half finished."

SIRHAN JURY

have gone for the jury. In this way, we have a good representation."

Cooper, who had accepted the jury twice Friday, also said the split was a fair one. In addition, he pointed out, there are seven Republicans and five Democrats on the panel — an almost even split.

"We've got people from all walks of life... I wouldn't know what particular type of juror to choose in this case, so the next best thing is to try to get a good conglomerate," Cooper said.

Another defense attorney, Emile Zola Berman of New York, noted the jury has "a fair run of minorities" including, he said, four apparent Mexican Americans, a person of Italian extraction and a Jew.

Berman, himself a Jew, said minorities "are psychologically deeply opposed to capital punishment. Being minorities they have suffered insults and have been looked down upon as second-class citizens. I believe they could identify with another minority, which Sirhan certainly is."

SIRHAN'S mother, Mary, 55, who has watched all proceedings in the trial from a back row, said the jury "looks like nice people... they will be fair... I am satisfied."

The defendant, who smiled when he heard the acceptance decision and laughed as he saw newsmen rush the courtroom doors, also approved of the panel.

"He said he liked the jury... they looked fine to him," chief defense investigator Mike McCowan said.

The jury includes:

—Ronald G. Evans of Inglewood, a PBX switchboard installer with Pacific Telephone Co.

—Miss Susan J. Brumm, a middle-aged Alhambra resident, who is also a Pacific Telephone Co. employee. She had just served another murder case in which the defendant was acquitted.

—Albert Frederico, a husky plumber from San Gabriel, who was selected after he retracted a statement that he "leaned" toward the death penalty.

—Mrs. Mary Lou Busby, a Downey High School mathematics teacher in her early 30s, whose husband is a teacher at Glendale High School.

—Lawrence K. Morgan, a programmer for IBM and the only person left on the panel from the original 12 selected. Bespectacled and appearing bored at all times, Morgan claims to read only research periodicals.

—Mrs. Irma Martinez, an attractive dark-haired woman in her 20s. Of Mexican descent, she works for the Southern California Edison Co. and lives in Alhambra.

—Alfonso Galindo, a tall, auburn-haired Long Beach resident who works as a civilian mechanic for the Navy. Married and with one child, he claims to read "all" newspapers, including the Wall Street Journal.

—Bruce D. Elliott, a young dark-haired systems analyst for TRW. He's the only bachelor on the panel.

—Miss Nell Bortell, a husky spinster who is a service representative for Pacific Telephone Co. She lives in Montevideo.

—Benjamin Glick, a bespectacled, gray-haired New York native who owns a retail ready-to-wear business which he and his wife operate from his West Los Angeles home.

—Gilbert Grace, a 22-year employee of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, who lives in the San Fernando Valley.

—George Broomis, a 20-year employee of the Water Department from El Sereno, who said he didn't want to serve on the jury but would if the court felt it necessary.

First indication that the jury selection was almost complete came early Friday when the defense, in a surprise move approved the jury. The prosecution didn't, and challenged Henry Miller, a Long Beach Naval Shipyard employee and the only Negro on the panel.

In Miller's place was seated Miss Bortells, and the turn to challenge fell to the defense.

Again, Cooper voiced acceptance of the jury.

DEPUTY Dist. Atty. David Fitts, who had handled most of the jury questioning, requested "time to decide" and the judge recessed early for lunch.

Shortly after the trial resumed at 2 p.m., Fitts rose slowly to his feet:

"If the court please, the people accept the jury."

A dozen reporters jumped to their feet to dash to the special telephones set up in the hall outside the courtroom, but were halted momentarily when courtroom officials asked them to "sit back down."

Judge Walker, from the bench, countered with: "Let them go" and the race to the phones began again.

The afternoon session took only 15 minutes.

NO SILVER MEDALS OF NIXON LEFT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1969 Inaugural Committee said Friday that 15,000 inaugural silver medals have been sold and no more orders will be accepted.

Sale of the silver medals, at $45 each, brought in $675,000, Robert G. McCune, executive director of the Inaugural Committee announced.

Bronze medals, which sell for $6 each, are still available, McCune said.

Bank Gal Gets a $405 Loan to Satisfy Bandit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man in his 20s went up to a window in a downtown Bank of America branch and demanded "all your money."

Vinla Saisi replied: "I don't have any money. This is a statement window."

But the bandit was persistent and repeated his demand several times.

Finally Mrs. Saisi turned to a nearby teller and said: "I'm being held up. Can I have some money?"

Mrs. Saisi received $405 and passed it over to the robber who walked out and vanished in the rain.

get under way with long, wide-ranging policy statements from each of the four participants.

Each side has taken elaborate precautions to portray the conference in its own way: the NLF and Hanoi as a four-sided meeting suggesting equality for the front, the Americans and the South Vietnamese as a two-sided affair suggesting that the front is simply the creature of Hanoi.

At the International Conference Center, an ornate old building which once was the Hotel Majestic, the four parties will enter the conference hall through two separate doors — the Americans and South Vietnamese through one and the NLF delegates and North Vietnamese through another.

The 15 American and 15 South Vietnamese delegates will seat themselves on the far side of an enormous round table. The front and the North Vietnamese, each also with 15 delegates, will arrange themselves on the opposite side.

THE Americans and South Vietnamese call this the "Paris Meeting." The North Vietnamese and the front call it "The Conference of Paris."

The shade of difference is that, in the American view, a conference suggests a formal meeting of sovereign nations, and the United States does not want to imply any sovereignty for the front.

Heading the U.S. delegation is Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, representing President Nixon. His principal aides are Ambassadors Cyrus R. Vance, held over temporarily from President Lyndon B. Johnson's team, Lawrence E. Walsh and

"After publication of the now-famous photo in a national magazine (in which the Pueblo crewmen gave a sign of vulgar contempt) the North Koreans went back and reviewed all of their propaganda materials," said Thomas.

He said Bucher testified that about this time—last Dec. 12—almost the entire crew received severe beatings.

"Bucher said the North Koreans tried specific hard-line Communist indoctrination on them," Thomas said, and told the crew the United States has been committing aggressive acts against their country since the USS General Sherman was wrecked on their shores in 1866.

THE NORTH Koreans conducted three or four searches to determine whether any of the crewmen were practicing any religion, Thomas said. Bucher testified, because they did not want their guards to see any religious activity.

Bucher also said some of his crewmen wrote books during their captivity including one book of rock 'n' roll songs by one of the younger members of the crew and language textbooks from memory in Japanese, Russian, Spanish and German, Thomas said.

He said the books, including the language texts by communications ex-

Mansfield Sees Probe on Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, forecast Friday a double-barreled Senate investigation of the seizure of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

He said he thinks the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees will want to inquire into all aspects of the Pueblo's capture by North Korea.

But he said he does not expect any action until after a naval court of inquiry completes its investigation and makes known its findings.

Mansfield said it will be up to the chairmen of the two committees to determine whether public hearings will be held.

He said the Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is a member, is interested because "there were some unanswered questions" when it quizzed officials of the Johnson administration.

PILOTS LEARNING HIJACKERS' LINGO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Airline pilots have begun carrying printed cards to bridge the English-Spanish language gap with hijackers and tell them such things as "Proceeding to Havana as requested."

The cards, printed in both English and Spanish, also say:

"Not enough fuel to reach Cuba."

"Weather in Cuba bad for landing."

"Air craft has mechanical problem, can't make Cuba."

"Must land nearest airport—emergency."

Since many of the hijackings to Cuba have been carried out by persons of Latin American descent, the idea behind the cards is to make sure there is no dangerous communications gap between U.S. pilots and hijackers who may not speak or understand English very well or at all, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said.

THE SPOKESMAN said the cards were proposed by the airlines for pilots' use and approved by the FAA.

This is the second recent move to ease hijacking dangers. The airline industry is considering offering rewards for hijackers, but as yet has not been able to get full agreement on the proposal from all the airlines.

Sources said each reward would range around $10,000—similar to one offered by the Justice Department in 1962 during the initial wave of hijackings.

So far this year there have been five hijackings of U.S. airliners, the latest coming Friday. In 1968, 13 U.S. airliners were hijacked.

35 File to Close Filibuster Debate

Sen. Frank Church filed Friday a petition on behalf of 35 senators to end a nearly two-week debate on a proposed stronger antifilibuster rule. The petition automatically comes up for a vote next Tuesday.

Since the 91st Congress convened, defenders of the current rule requiring a two-thirds majority to end debate have been filibustering against consideration of the proposal for a three-fifths majority requirement.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen there always is a chance the necessary two-thirds majority to end debate will be obtained, but he said if it is not adopted, the Senate may in time change its rules to permit closure by majority vote.

"That would be a disaster," he added.

For this Congress, Church said he and other leaders of the drive for a three-fifths rule are dropping ping their contention that at the start of a new Congress debate on a proposed rules change may be cut off by majority vote.

The Senate last week overrode, by a 53-45 vote, a ruling by then-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey upholding their contention on this issue.

Nixon Wants Excess Sites 'Put to Work'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon Administration will ask Congress for authority to turn over to local communities excess Government sites and facilities for use as job-stimulating economic developments, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Friday.

He said the Brooklyn Navy Yard — appraised at $23.5 million in negotiations between New York City and the Johnson administration — would be the first facility to be given away under this plan.

A smiling John V. Lindsay, New York's Republican mayor, stood next to Agnew when he made the announcement. Lindsay said plans were in motion for private industry to set up "land and sea" enterprises at the idle 265-acre Navy Yard that would eventually create 20,000 new jobs.

The mayor said community leaders from the Bedford-Stuyvesant slum area near the Navy Yard were already involved in planning for the project.

LINDSAY AND Agnew said no legislation would be necessary for New York City to acquire the Navy yard, but they were not at liberty at the moment to explain how the city could take over the facility without special legislation.

"It is feasible," Lindsay said in response to questions. He said details will be spelled out after a meeting Monday at which New York City officials and congressional representatives will take part.

Lindsay may have had in mind a temporary arrangement allowing the Government to lease the yard to the city while legislation was awaiting action. Congressional sources said it would require at least several months to draft and pass legislation.

Under present law, the Government can give away its property only for public health and educational — but not industrial — purposes.

AT A NEWS conference in front of the White House, Agnew did not specify what other facilities might be turned over to localities. The Government holds billions of dollars worth of property, a considerable amount of which is categorized as surplus.

"This is an investment, not an expenditure," said Agnew. "The more the better."

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said President Nixon was vitally interested in the concept and had delegated the job of carrying it out to Agnew.

New York City had been trying to obtain the Navy Yard, abandoned in 1965, for some time. Under present law, the Federal Government must sell such facilities at a fair market value. In negotiations, the city and the Johnson administration had decided that $23.5 million was a fair market price.

Lindsay said one of the developers ready to move into the project had a $41 million enterprise in mind. It would include a "substantial" loan from the Federal Government, he said.

HE SAID Agnew assured him the commerce department was ready to make the loan "immediately."

The White House also said Nixon had created a cabinet committee on economic policy to help plan long-range economic policies while the President's closest advisers help with immediate economic issues.

Press Secretary Ziegler said the committee would be headed by Nixon and would include Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin, Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, Labor Secretary George P. Shultz, Budget Director Robert P. Mayo, Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Arthur Burns, a new Nixon Capitol counselor.

The White House also announced two Agriculture Department appointments — William E. Galbraith, a Beemer, Neb., livestock feeder, as deputy administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and David A. Hamill, Denver, Colo., as administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), the same job he held during the Eisenhower Administration.

members of the Japanese Diet joined Kennedy in calling for a more flexible policy toward Communist China.

THE CONFERENCE was the idea of the Japanese legislators, members of the ruling Liberal Democratic party who want their government, as well as the United States, to recognize Red China.

Kennedy's statement called for easing a U.S. trade embargo against Red China which he said "has only been effective as a symbol of hostility." He also advocated easing travel barriers between the two countries and development of additional contacts with Chinese diplomats.

"The conflict in Vietnam has made adjustment in American policy toward China difficult, if not impossible," Kennedy said.

Kennedy Wants Both Chinas in U.N.

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has urged the United States to take the initiative in drafting and supporting a resolution to admit Communist China to the United Nations along with Taiwan.

He said there are major obstacles to inclusion of both Red China and Nationalist China, but that an American initiative at the next session of the international body would "contribute to a new beginning in our Asia policy."

Kennedy's statement was in a position paper submitted Friday to a Japanese-American conference on China policy at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. The new Senate majority whip did not attend the opening session but was scheduled to appear today.

GAVE OUT A FEW EXTRAS TOO!

Computer Goofed: Paid Some Who Had Resigned

By MICHAEL L. POSNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators report that a federal agency overpaid employees, paid the wrong people and miscalculated tax records in a computerized foul-up which cost the Government thousands and perhaps millions of dollars.

A computer, installed in 1965 to centralize payroll work at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), made most of the mistakes, the general accounting office (GAO) said.

Before it was caught three years later, the GAO said, the machine issued extra paychecks to some employees and free savings bonds to others. It gave salaries to people who had resigned, were on leave without pay or had never reported for work at all. It also gave employees W-2 forms listing income below their real pay, thus potentially granting income tax deductions.

The savings bonds were recovered, the GAO said, but a number of the checks were cashed.

"MANY CONTROLS necessary for an effective computer system were not being employed by the HEW central payroll system," GAO said.

The investigators, in reports to committees of the House and Senate, said that besides the computer errors, they found checks totaling $308,866 plus $514 in cash "in an unlocked file drawer."

"We noticed that a $31.3 million check for payroll deductions drawn in favor of the Internal Revenue Service on Aug. 1, 1966, had been kept on hand for over three months," the report said.

It recommended that HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch "assign a high priority to redesign of the payroll system and keep these efforts under close surveillance until the redesign is successfully completed."

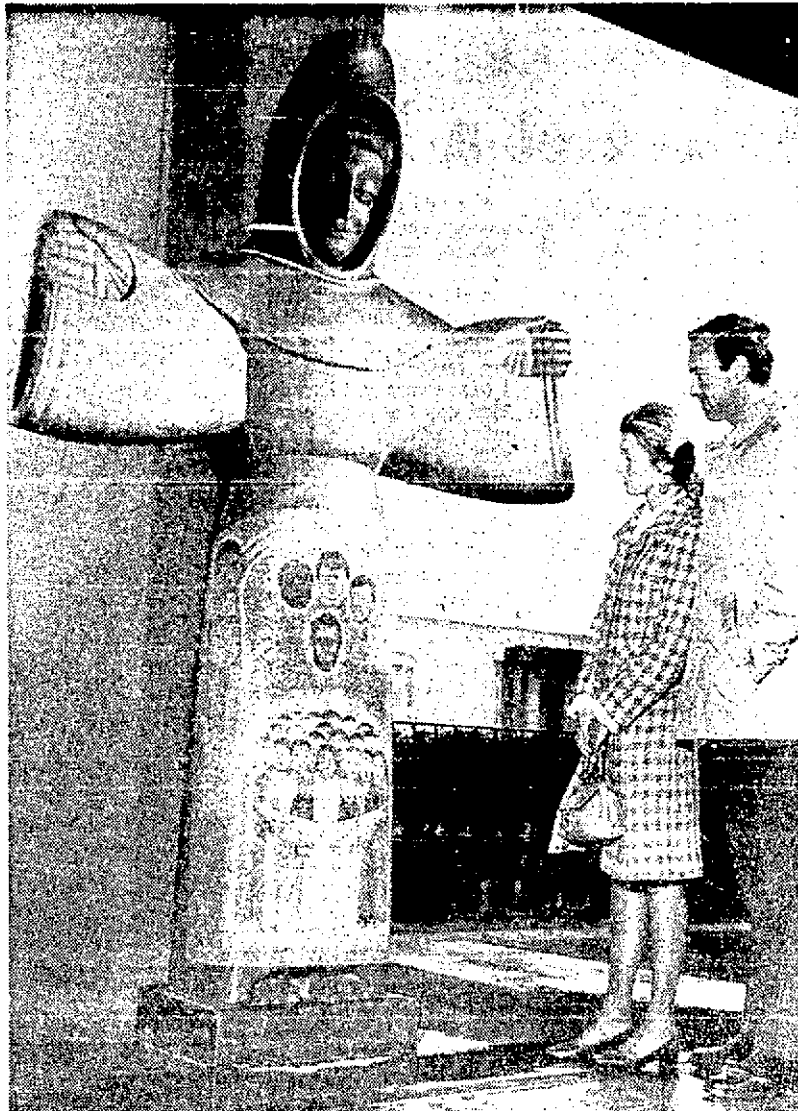

The report was unable to say precisely how much the Government lost. But it said it found a 24 per cent rate of errors in 300 pay records it studied, and estimated how much the same rate would cost if applied to all the 106,000 persons on HEW's payroll.

"WE ESTIMATE that errors in HEW's 1965 payroll would total about $900,000 in the computation of gross earnings, about $3.1 million in employees' leave balances and about $7.1 million in the amount of gross earnings and tax deductions shown on employees' annual withholding statements," GAO said.

The auditors said five public health service officers who had resigned were sent paychecks and cashed them. In two years, the GAO said, 33,154 savings bonds worth $1.6 million were erroneously issued. But the savings bond error was caught in time and the bonds were returned.

The payroll errors were uncovered when one public health service officer complained that his withholding tax statement was wrong. A check disclosed that he had been paid $1,982 too much.

MONUMENT IN GUN METAL

This nine-foot-tall "gun" statue, which is on display in the terrace of San Francisco's Alcazar Building in the Golden Gate development, was cast from gun metal by sculptor Benny Bufano. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hufnagel of Bolinas, examine the creation. Replete with images of four historical figures who were assassinated, the recurring Bufano theme is the typical children of the world mosaic. The monument was reportedly cast from gun metal and covered with bronze to prevent rust.

Hayakawa Sees Nationwide Plot to Wreck Universities

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dr. S. I. Hayakawa detailed a picture of national revolution and outlined a peaceful vision of the future of San Francisco State College Friday.

Hayakawa, acting president of the trouble-ravaged college since Nov. 28, appeared at ease as he addressed 700 business and professional men at the Commonwealth Club of California.

"There is a systematic plan to bring the college to a halt as a prelude to a national attack on our higher education system," Hayakawa said.

Rain Hits Dissidents on Campus

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A heavy all-day downpour Friday reduced dissident activity at San Francisco State College to a thin, straggling line of pickets at the campus entrance.

An occasional cry of "Shut it down" rose from the soggy procession, which numbered no more than 100.

The situation was in sharp contrast with the lightning arrest Thursday of 456 teachers, students and outsiders at a forbidden campus rally.

Two were arrested Friday, one on a drunk charge, another for refusing to show identification.

"There definitely is a plan to destroy one of the nerve centers of our culture, our university system."

Hayakawa, the jaunty semantist whose tam-o-shanter has become a symbol of resistance to revolution, said he did not know who was behind the movement.

"I am not about to attribute it to a foreign power. It remains that there is a widespread wave of disenchantment with our institutions that activates our young people."

HAYAKAWA received a standing ovation and enthusiastic applause at several points during his talk, in which he said:

"The entire episode (at San Francisco State) is an BERKELEY (UPI) — Striking students continued to picket Friday at the university of California in a three-day-old walkout called to back demands for a third world college. The number of pickets varied from about 24 in the early morning to 200 by noon. Classes were reported "normal" and there were no incidents.

attempt to seize power, ignoring the ballot box and resorting to mob rule, called participatory democracy by the New Left.

"The strike has not been a success... despite the support of pinheads from Sonoma State, knuckleheads from San Jose State and savages from Berkeley."

"We will start the second semester Feb. 17 and we are going to have a very fine, swinging semester."

"About 5 per cent of our 18,000 students are involved. When we arrested 483 (police say 456), we took care of an awful lot of them."

People came to him with tales of bloodshed and turmoil, he said, demanding he shut down the college.

FHA, VA Interest Ceiling Boosted to Record 7½ Pct.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday raised the ceiling on interest rates for mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration from 6¾ per cent to a record 7½ per cent.

George Romney, the new secretary of housing and urban development, said he raised the ceiling to attract more private funds into housing loans. He said that because inflation had pushed other interest rates past 7 per cent, little money was flowing to back mortgages at the old rate of 6¾ per cent.

"Without private mortgage money — and it is being withheld from federal programs because of the low yield — we cannot function adequately," Romney said. But he added that "we view this increase as an interim, emergency measure to permit buyers who are being locked out of the mortgage market to purchase homes."

ROMNEY emphasized he hoped to see the rates come down when inflation is controlled.

Government and home building spokesmen said the higher ceiling offered only temporary relief for home buyers and their search for mortgage money. They said reducing inflation was the only real hope for eventually lowering home mortgage costs.

The new ceiling means home buyers with FHA loans will pay an effective rate of 8 per cent interest since there is a continuing insurance fee of one half of 1 per cent in addition to the basic interest. There is no such fee on VA loans.

The new ceiling means that FHA and VA will guarantee home loans for qualified buyers bearing interest as high as 7½ per cent.

But in addition to the interest, lenders have been collecting one-time premiums in the form of "points" — one point being 1 per cent of the amount of the loan. Regulations permit home buyers who are getting FHA or VA loans to pay no more than one point, with the seller of the property having to pay as many additional points as the lender can get.

HOME building industry officials predicted that the points charged a seller in FHA-VA transactions probably would drop because of the higher ceiling.

Romney noted that "home owners who are selling their homes are finding their equities substantially reduced or wiped out" by having to pay so many "points" to make a sale.

The secretary's action actually affected only the FHA loans, but he said the VA made a similar ceiling increase after he consulted with VA officials.

Romney's action had no effect on the 4.6 million outstanding mortgages insured by the FHA. They will continue at the interest rate specified at the time the mortgage was written.

Murray Booked on Gun Charge, Loses Probation

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A municipal judge issued a bench warrant Friday for the arrest of Black Panther George Murray, released on bond hours earlier after being charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Judge Albert Alexrod revoked Murray's probation on a battery conviction last year and issued the warrant on grounds the black militant's arrest in East Palo Alto put him in violation of terms of his probation.

Murray, a key figure in the student strike at San Francisco State College, and Donald Ray Smothers, 25, a student at the school, were charged with illegal possession of firearms and jailed in Redwood City early Friday. Both were released a short time later on $625 bond.

'IT'S HOW YOU LOOK AT HIM'

Gina Tells How to Get a Man

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Gina Lollobrigida, international symbol of oomph for more than 15 years, snuggled into an easy chair in her Waldorf Towers suite this week and held forth on why she thinks men find European women more appealing than American women.

"In America, women are so important and so selfish they can almost live without men," the 40-year-old actress said authoritatively. "They become so powerful they're actually the equal to men."

"In Europe," she said, "the man is God. And when the man has the power, the women are more feminine. We don't destroy his image. We act small and unimportant — and even stupid — in front of him. And that makes us appealing to him."

Miss Lollobrigida, whose famous curves were covered by a sleeveless leopard skin dress by Yves Saint Laurent, had one other pronouncement:

"The bust is not so important anymore," she said firmly. "Of course I'm not badly done. But today sexy comes from the personality and how you look at a man. That's the reason I appeal to men. They look at me and think I'm a great lover. They see through my eyes that I can be 100 per cent woman with them."

Miss Lollobrigida, who resides in Rome, was in New York to promote her new film, "Buona Sera, Mrs. Campbell," a comedy in which she plays an Italian woman who doesn't know which of three American GIs fathered her daughter during World War II. It is her 51st film.

About the only signs that she is approaching middle age are the tiny crows' feet that are beginning to form around her sparkling brown eyes.

"I have no beauty secrets," she said. "I don't sleep much, because I recuperate so easily. I eat everything. I love vegetables, artichokes, pepperoni, oysters. I like peppered foods, too, but they're bad for the liver. The only exercise I get is when I dance."

Miss Lollobrigida was separated in 1966 from her Yugoslav-born husband of 17 years, Milko Skofic, a physician who gave up his career to be her manager. They have a son, Milko, 11.

Since the separation, Miss Lollobrigida has been linked romantically with such men as actor Rock Hudson, heart surgeon Dr. Christian Barnard and former Indonesian President Sukarno.

She said that right now, anyway, she had no intention of getting married again — even if the Vatican did approve her recent request for an annulment.

"I'm free, and I enjoy my freedom," she said. "If I want company, I have it. That way I can't make another mistake like I did with my first marriage."

Miss Lollobrigida said she was "really disgusted" with what she had observed of American mores.

"I think you're destroying sex here," she said with a wild wave of her right arm. "I saw the Broadway musical 'Hair,' and I think it is against sex, against love, against everything. There is nothing left to the imagination. Men and women stand naked on the stage in it. Even in the worst nightclub in Paris men and women would never be completely naked. This is the opposite of sex."

Miss Lollobrigida said she was especially pleased recently to learn that the word "Lollobrigida" had been added to the French dictionary in her honor.

"It's used to describe a landscape with a lot of hills," she said, beaming.

BOOK REVIEWS

SE Asia History Published

A HISTORY OF MODERN SOUTHEAST ASIA. By John Bastin and Harry J. Banda. Prentice-Hall, $5.95.

Vietnam, of course, holds the center of the stage in the drama of Southeast Asia. But that drama has had other "actors" with considerably important roles in our time.

In Malaya, for instance (Malaya has now become the two independent nations of Malaysia and Singapore), patience and a clever military strategy laid low a Communist guerrilla movement that was well on the way to a takeover; it took more than a decade to overcome that threat.

In the Philippines — where the United States before Pearl Harbor set a date for complete independence, and after World War II delivered at the promised time — the Huk-balahap, an even more threatening Communist guerrilla movement, made a serious bid for power. First-rate leadership in Manila evolved ways of winning most of the Huk away from terrorism (of course there was hard fighting too).

The story of modern Indonesia, its dramatic switch from a mélange of the mixed-up Marxism and "Guided Democracy" of Sukarno to the beginnings at least of genuine democracy, is one of the most exciting in this compact but amazingly informative book, which traces Southeast Asia's colonial and social history from the arrival of the Portuguese traders in the 16th century to the modern days of decolonization.

Between First and Second Avenues, on warm days, the Puerto Ricans play their favorite game, dominoes, at makeshift tables on the sidewalk, all day long, amid the hustle and bustle. Bowery derelicts weave eastward to collapse on stoops between Second and Third Avenues. Life is a kaleidoscope in this book's Tenth Street.

THE DRAGON. Fifteen Stories by Yevgeny Zamiatin. Translated from the Russian by Mirra Ginsburg. Vintage Books, Random House, $1.95.

Zamyatin was one of the two best Russian writers of the 1920s; the other was Isaac Babel. Both were uncompromising as artists and refused to knuckle under to the party line. Babel paid with his life; Zamyatin was deprived of the rights to publish, and wrote a remarkably daring letter to Stalin asking that he and his family be allowed to emigrate; amazingly, the plea was granted.

The letter appears in this reissue, together with 15 stories among which are some of the purest gems of satire.

THE RIFT. By David C. Levine. Harris-Wolfe, $6.95.

David C. Levine, former editor and political commentator for the U.S. Information Agency and now editor for a magazine published by the Agency for International Development, analyzes the published documents in which Peking and the Kremlin tear at each other's throats. He traces to its roots the split between the two titans of the Communist world.

"The duration of the rift will be determined by the same circumstance that called it into being," he believes — "the inability of the Russians and the Chinese to agree on the nature of the epoch" because they are in fact living in two different epochs. This is simply another way of saying that the two countries differ so widely in the state of their political, economic, and social development that the aims and aspirations of each — according to Marxism-Leninism — seem to threaten the aims and aspirations of the other."

All That Cool Cash Embarrasses Him

LONDON (AP) — Classical actor Nicol Williamson is fed up with the stage but embarrassed by the money he makes as a movie star.

"The stage is so bloody boring, doing the same thing night after night," said Williamson, who starred in the Broadway production of "Inadmissible Evidence."

"I'll never take another stage role for more than three months, and that means I won't be able to work in New York again."

Now working on his fourth movie, Williamson is earning far more than he ever did in the theater. But the 30-year-old Scotsman is one Scot who doesn't care about money.

"The money doesn't interest me," he grinned. "I have no respect for it — it's a marvelous thing to spend but a horrible thing to think about."

"I'm not obsessed by money. I'm obsessed by work. I go mad if I have a day off."

He hasn't had many days off lately. While his last picture, "The Bofors Gun," was opening, Williamson was called in to replace Richard Burton in "Laughter in the Dark."

"Sex isn't much of a problem in British films, but it still is in America," said Williamson. "But the way things are changing, you'll be able to show anything you want on the screen in 15 years."

"The stage belongs to the actors and we should keep it that way."

$82-Million Highway Link

By BILL HOME
Staff Writer

Route for an $82.6-million, eight-lane freeway linking the Commodore Heim bridge from Terminal Island to the still-to-be-built Artesia Freeway segment in Compton was disclosed Friday by the California Highway Commission.

James A. Moe, state Director of Public Works, made the announcement at his Sacramento office, saying $16.4 million will be saved by the commission's adoption of the proposed "Green" route.

The new bridge-freeway superhighway will be constructed as soon as state highway funds become available, he said.

The route will run north-easterly along the Terminal Island Freeway to a point south of Sepulveda Boulevard at the west Long Beach city limits, then swing north across the San Diego Freeway running roughly parallel to Alameda Street to a point south of Del Amo Boulevard, then north to the future Artesia Freeway segment at Artesia Boulevard.

Moe said the route is supported by the cities of Long Beach and Los Angeles, Port of Long Beach, Compton and the Long Beach and Dominguez chambers of commerce.

"Fewer single-family residences will be affected . . . by choosing this routing in preference to the other alternative studied," Moe said.

The $82.6 million estimate includes both construction and right-of-way acquisition, Moe said.

Moe also said completion last month of the Artesia Freeway between Lakewood Boulevard to just east of the San Gabriel River Freeway superseded as a state highway a parallel section of Artesia Boulevard.

He recommended the state improve drainage at Ardmore Avenue and contribute to the cost of improving drainage at Wondruff Avenue in order to place Artesia Boulevard in a state of good repair before relinquishing it to Bellflower.

The commission allotted $14,000 for this task, he said.

Some $17,000 was also allocated by the commission for two San Gabriel River Freeway traffic signal improvements at ramp connections in Cerritos and Santa Fe Springs.

Torrance Hearing on Nollac Opens

Only one witness testified Friday during the opening hours of a hearing on misconduct charges against Torrance City Engineer Walter M. Nollac.

Nollac was suspended last December from his $25,000-per-year job after being accused of doing favors for land developer Kenneth Battram with whom he held joint ownership of a boat.

The only witness was Glenn Weaver, Nollac's assistant and his temporary replacement while the suspension is in force.

At the conclusion of involved technical testimony on grading permits and compaction of dirt fill in a subdivision, Weaver was asked for clarification on one point by the chairman of the Civil Service Commission conducting the hearing.

Weaver told Chairman Larry Bowman he had testified Battram was the only person given permission to begin grading without the issuance of a permit.

Weaver also said some 30 other persons have been issued grading permits without a bond actually being in possession of the city.

Proceedings were to continue today.

Two Santa Anans Granted $340,000 in Libel Damages

A Superior Court jury in Los Angeles awarded two engineers $340,000 libel damages Friday against a Santa Ana-based company and its former president.

James Patton, 34, and Richard Thrasher, 37, won the award from Royal Industries Inc. and its former president Edward C. Reed.

The two men claimed when they formed their own company after leaving Royal, letters sent out by the firm and Reed caused their venture to fold.

The two men told the jury, sitting before Judge Ellsworth Meyer, that four days after they left Royal, which manufactures pressure vacuum equipment for measurement and calibration in industry, Reed mailed nearly 80 letters to prospective customers.

The letters stated Patton and Thrasher were terminated and were being replaced with "personnel who have more experience and knowledge."

They said they left Royal under friendly terms and had been treated to a farewell luncheon by Reed.

Each man received $170,000 damages.

Pitchess Wants 63 More Men

Hiring of 63 more deputies -- 50 for southland cities -- was recommended Friday by Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess.

Firestone station would get 20 additional deputies to patrol the new city of Carson, 18 more would be assigned to Norwalk station handling Santa Fe Springs and Pico Rivera, while Lakewood station would get 12 deputies for Cerritos, Paramount and Bellflower.

County Chief Administrative Officer Lindon S. Hollinger said costs of the extra patrols will be paid by the cities involved.

Report Set on Noise at Airport

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A lengthy study of noise levels produced by aircraft at Orange County Airport, south of Santa Ana, will be detailed Feb. 11 to county supervisors.

Aviation Director Robert J. Bresnahan said it will include an "estimate" of how much noise would result if operations at the field tripled.

He hastened to explain there are "no plans" for increased operations, but said the information will be useful in determining how much additional activity the airport can support before the noise level becomes intolerable.

IN THE opinion of hundreds of householders, most living in the Upper Newport area in the flight pattern, noise is already intolerable. They have filed almost 900 damage suits for more than $27 million.

Bresnahan said most of the decibel-level readings were made in the Upper Bay area, but other tests have been made in areas under the approach and landing patterns of the airport.

The aviation director said the county wants to know if jet plane noises "actually are influencing property values" as claimed. If they are not, he said, the study might show how much more air traffic can be generated.

The study, made by a Massachussets firm at a cost of $7,000, was under taken last November.

U.S. Gives L.B. Firm $1.8-Million Contract

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

"Bromeliad" is an abbreviated name for the Bromeliaceae plants of the pineapple family. Though natives of the Americas where growing conditions are somewhat limited as to temperature, light and humidity, they grow well in our temperate areas of S. California. They'll stand some cold, too.

It was an eye opener to us when we checked on these plants with Jimmy Girdilian, who specializes in out-of-the-ordinary bulbs and lants and collects new specimens on plant-hunting expeditions.

Bromeliads are intriguingly facile as to their garden uses, culture care, blooming habit and colorful foliage. The happiest news about them is that many will grow outdoors in the ground or in containers, some in sunny locations, others requiring some shade. Yet they'll grow equally well indoors in lots of indirect sunlight.

THESE plants seemingly grow well in a number of loose, porous combinations

are unpredictable as to blooming periods. The trick to force them into bloom is to place a small whole apple or a quarter-inch crystal of calcium carbide, obtainable from some hardware stores, beside the plant, then cover it with a plastic bag. Shade the plant if it is in sun. The gas from the apple or the calcium carbide isn't happy indoors if the room is warm and stuffy.

Guzmania lingulata, with leaves about 18 inches long, produces a stunning inflorescence from the cup about a foot above the foliage. The star-shaped head of brilliant crimson bracts last for some weeks, but the small, yellow flowers last only a short time.

There are many more fascinating bromeliads you can learn about in "Bromeliads in Color and Their Culture," a compilation of the Bulletin of the Bromeliad Society, assembled and written by Victoria Padilla, an educator and a dedicated horticultural hobbyist.

of soil mixes and organic materials. They don't require specific watering intervals, but only as they need it.

In case you may be wondering by now what kind of plants we're talking about that you may have grown or seen, one of the commonest of the bromeliads is the Billbergia nutans, originally from Brazil.

It is a stemless plant with linear leaves 12 to 18 inches long, finely toothed and striped on the back. The hollow "bowl" in the center, formed by the foliage, catches the water which is slowly absorbed by the plant. The flower stalk arches over with showy glowing pink bracts, with four to eight or more bell-shaped blossoms in drooping clusters.

WE'VE seen this billbergia thrive in shade, also in sun, in the ground or in containers. The blooming period usually begins in February.

We were also told that some of the bromeliads

Q. Please tell us what to do about berry vines. The runners go clear across my 40-foot lot. Have never seen them grown commercially, but surely they can't allow this. Where some lie on the ground they root, and I don't want any more but can't put all of them on the fence. Should they be cut off and if so how far? Do they bear on the new growth on these long runners? S. Berry.

Caneberries such as blackberry, youngberry, victorberry, dewberry, hoyesberry and loganberry respond to the same pruning system. First year they are allowed to sprawl on the ground. From then on they are pruned each winter. Build a fence or frame. String three heavy-gauge wires horizontally from post to post. The lowest wire should be about 18 inches above the ground, next two a foot apart. Tie the new canes that grew out last year to the wires, spacing them evenly for easy fruit picking. Cut out all the old canes at ground level. Later new shoots appear as suckers. Cut out the ones that are not growing in the rows with the berry fence. Spray them right away with a dormant "cleanup spray." Use the amount recommended, provided no new growth has sprouted yet. If it has sprouted, use less of the spray. Spread about half-inch layer of manure around the plants. Six weeks later fertilize with half the amount of fertilizer recommended.

Friday's Quotations

By GEOFFREY PARKINSON
Technical Analyst with Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis

Confidence rises but caution remains. The short term trend has improved but the outlook is not yet dynamic. Until there is a more definite reversal to the upside only limited upside progress can be projected. A volume acceleration above the 940 level will provide the

The intermediate market outlook is neutral. The very sharp decline to the 920 level constituted more than a normal market correction. This correction was not followed by any real base of consolidation or accumulation. The very gradual upturn from the 920 low did not suggest any real reversal of the previous downturn. Until more than a technical rebound can be projected, the possibility of still another general downturn in the market will exist. Increasing sluggishness in the 940-960 area will suggest taking some trading profits at least until a more dynamic near-term outlook can be expected.

BIG BLOCK TRANSACTIONS have failed to indicate any significant support during this recovery period. In fact there has been a slight bias toward the sell side. This does not yet indicate significant profit-taking but it does suggest that this area does not expect any significant upturn over the near term. Among the stocks under significant accumulation last week which are regarded favorably on a technical basis are: American Airlines, Rohr, Armco Steel and Chris-Craft.

Total short interest dropped sharply in the recent report. While some of the decline can be attributed to seasonal factors, it was nonetheless a significant drop. The potential support of this area has been reduced. This is another technical factor which points to a less dynamic over-all market outlook over the near to medium term.

NORMALLY THE STOCKS with the highest short interest figures in relation to their total capitalizations provide good trading vehicles. Since many of these issues would be expected to be vulnerable to any further market weakness, another criterion that they be at or near levels that should provide good support was added. Among the stocks meeting the above criteria are: AMK Corp., American Photocopy, Remco, Itel, Kiddie, Litten.

IBM, a bellwether glamor stock, continues to show relative weakness. The prolonged downturn since its 1968 high has resulted in a loss of nearly 75 points. While no significant recovery is expected without a fairly broad base of consolidation it has now reached the 280-330 level which should provide significant support over the near term. At least a technical rebound would be expected from above the 280 level. This would suggest holding above this level in all but very aggressive trading accounts.

Due to a wire service strike some market statistics were not available for the week ending Jan. 10. A partial list of those statistics has now been supplied:

The week's New York Stock Market volume was 67,117,000 shares. Advances totaled 290, declines 1,343, unchanged 80, total issues 1,719, new yearly 1968-69 highs 25, new lows 72. Weekly number of traded issues: New York Bonds 676, American stocks 1,081, American bonds 134. Other statistics are unavailable.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week posted its second straight weekly advance in moderately active trading.

Stocks marked time for the first couple of days. The inaugural address of President Richard M. Nixon left a completely neutral impression on Wall Street. It was a foregone conclusion, and published prominently, that Nixon was bound to make some reference in his inaugural to the number one economic problem: inflation. But he didn't.

The result was that on Monday and Tuesday there was little change in stock prices. On balance, the market was down slightly and trading was dull as the street waited for some definite clue as to Nixon's policies regarding business and finance.

By Wednesday, Wall Streeters seemed to be coming to the conclusion that there would be no swift and drastic pronouncements from the White House on inflation or other important problems until or unless changing events compelled such a step. Meanwhile, news that "substantive" peace talks on Vietnam would start in Paris this weekend provided a mild tonic for the market and an uptrend got under way.

The advance gathered power on Thursday when stocks made a substantial gain on the week's heaviest volume, 13.14 million shares. Not only were peace hopes growing but Wall Street was pleased by increased profits of some big corporations, a sharp rise in auto sales and an increase in scheduled auto output.

At the same time, there was some difference of opinion among economists in monetary factors of the economy as to whether the rise of interest rates to record levels was really dampening the business boom or whether it was not. The net result seemed to be an increase in inflationary expectations even though some sources expressed the opinion that the market must follow the economy in any period of "disinflation" that lies ahead.

After carrying through a good part of Friday, the rally sputtered out and the session was mixed at the close; but this did not keep the averages from making clear gains on the week.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 3.05 to 938.59.

To the Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week rose 4.0 to 357.0, equaling its advance of the previous week.

Volume for the week totaled 59,029,060 shares, down slightly from the previous week's total of 58,386,467.

Of 1,706 issues traded this week on the New York Stock Exchange, 935 rose and 633 fell. New highs for 1968-69 totaled 68 and new lows 39.

While there was no sweeping trend by specific stock groups, several specially situated issues made strides. Goodrich rose 8½, American Smelting 10, Loew's Theatres 4½, Benguet 2¼ and Occidental Petroleum 1¾.

Film Shows Primitive Cong Arms Factory

CA MAU, Vietnam (AP) — Somewhere in the jungle, barefoot steelworkers lift pots of molten metal from crude, oil-barrel furnaces. As the Viet Cong's propaganda department films them, they cast weapons for the enemy — possibly under the noses of American or South Vietnamese government patrols.

Mines, grenades and mortars, waist-high fanned rockets and bulbous warheads are stacked around the primitive foundry depicted in 600 feet of black and white film seized with a Viet Cong regional information center in the U Minh Forest southwest of Saigon.

THE WORKERS, clad in uniforms without insignia, move about busily beneath a sign in Vietnamese that reads: "Be careful. Don't cause accidents." Another scene shows a plaque with a red star and a list of names. It looks like an award for diligence.

The film was shot last fall, probably in the Cambodian border region of the Mekong Delta or northwest of Saigon. A work chart posted on a shop wall bears the date Sept. 21, 1968, and mines stacked in the shop are inscribed August 1968.

Tall, leafless trees, possibly defoliated by American planes, surround the weapons factory.

It is primitive, but it is the most advanced such installation yet seen in South Vietnam. The Saigon government relies on ammunition imported from the United States. American and South Vietnamese troops have overrun many jungle factories, but they were simple installations compared to the one in the captured film.

THE FILM opens with Viet Cong soldiers marching through a forest carrying Russian rifles. The camera then moves through the trees to a pall of smoke.

Steel is being boiled in several drums, and the molten metal is poured into casts to form the hulls of torpedo-like land mines and grenades. Clay is knocked away, and a cluster of grenades is shown tangled like grapes on a vine.

Several sequences depict the manufacture of grenade fuses, showing the crudely molded forms, then the fuses being smoothed on a lathe and an inspector congratulating a girl who poured the casings. She smiles proudly, and the camera shows the ammunition belt hung around her waist in guerilla style.

Hundreds of large claymore mines are turned out by the weapons factory, and workers fashion the shaped cases of the mines from tin drums, soldering them together and filling the cases with lethal steel pellets produced on the spot.

A SMILING girl wearing a woolen cap and gold earrings operates a lathe, her eyes reflecting the light of a naked light bulb overhead. Another girl, wearing two rings on her wedding finger, carefully files a 75mm recoilless rifle shell.

The machinery is simple but practical.

A girl methodically stamps out warheads with a hand press while others, wearing gauze masks, prepare gunpowder. Male workers smile as they fit rifle grenades to the barrels of Soviet-made rifles.

One scene shows rows and rows of ammunition cases, all neatly numbered, being loaded onto camouflaged sampans, probably destined for Viet Cong units scattered throughout the delta.

Big Viet Hospital Built, Run by Gifts

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A few hundred yards inland from Red Beach, where U.S. Marines stormed ashore to join the Vietnam war, as the first American combat unit in the Da Nang area, an almost modern hospital for children has been built.

The $300,000 hospital, with 120 beds, is one of the largest civic action endeavors by the Marine Corps in Vietnam. It was built mainly from contributions of U.S. Marines and Navy personnel.

The money it needs to keep its door open for war wounded, sick and injured comes from voluntary contributions of private citizens, civic groups and business firms in the U.S. and elsewhere.

THE PARENTS of a Marine heard about the hospital from their son and sent a check for $1,000. A retired American schoolteacher regularly sends lightweight clothing for the children which she make herself.

The air conditioner in the operating room was provided by an American women's club and the breathing machine, worth several thousand dollars was donated by the widow of an American officer who was killed in Vietnam.

Every other day servicemen visit to bring toys. Soon after the first Marines had established their combat bases near Da Nang a small group of Navy corpsmen and doctors of the 1st Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment, began to treat Vietnamese children — often victims of the escalated war — in a wood and tin-roof dispensary.

'Unknowns' Lead Crosby

By DAVE LEWIS
Staff Writer

PEBBLE BEACH — PGA officials were within 15 minutes of suspending play Friday morning when the rain slackened and then quit for a few hours to permit the touring professionals and their amateur partners to officially get the first round of the Bing Crosby links classic in the books.

After nearly 10½ hours of play over three water-soaked Monterey Peninsula courses, a couple of golfers usually described as "unknowns" share the lead with four-under-par 68's.

Terry Wilcox, 30-year-old New York Pro who played Cypress Point, and Jim Colbert, 27-year-old Kansas pro who finished his round at Pebble Beach in virtually darkness.

For Wilcox, who earned only $65.82 in the first two winter tournaments, it was a gain of five big strokes over the 73 he had washed out Thursday when the first round was postponed.

Colbert was one under par Thursday through 10 holes when play was suspended.

One stroke back with 69's are Bruce Devlin, Dan Sikes and Steve Spray.

Devlin was four-under going into the last hole at Pebble Beach after a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th, but he three-putted the 18th for a bogey.

The 69's by Spray and Sikes were the lowest competitive rounds ever recorded at the newest of the Peninsula courses, Spyglass Hill. Both had hot putting rounds. Sikes had birdie putts of 30, 20, 15 and 12 feet, and Spray holed out from distances of 35, 25 and 12 feet in addition to dropping in a couple of 10-footers. These made up for a bad putting lapse on the fourth green when he four-putted from the edge. He finally knocked an 18-inch putt two feet past the cup and then missed coming back.

Billy Casper, Bob Goalby and Bob Charles all had 70's. Charles, the left-hander from New Zealand, wound up gaining the most ground of any golfer through the suspension of the first round Thursday. He had an 82 washed out.

Again taking a bogey four on the famed par-three "ocean hole" at Cypress by "playing it safe" Casper equaled his 70 that was rained out Thursday.

Jack Nicklaus was among 21 who shot 71 despite hitting a four-iron right over the flag into the ocean for a bogey on the ninth hole at Pebble Beach.

Lee Trevino was among those who recorded par 72's. Arnold Palmer and defending champion Johnny Pott shot the same scores they had washed out Thursday — Arnie a 74, and Pott a 75.

More than half the field began play in a driving rain and it looked like a cancellation was but a few minutes off when Casper's foursome was forced to wait 30 minutes on the sixth hole at Cypress before an official ruling was made to allow the greenskeeper to sweep the water off the green.

"There was at least a half-inch of water covering the green," Casper said.

Less than 15 minutes after play resumed the rain slowed to a drizzle and finally stopped at about 11 a.m. The ultimate fate of the tournament still is in doubt as the latest weather forecast predicts intermittent rain through Sunday.

Wilcox, who earned $14,990 last year, fashioned his 68 with a red-hot final nine at Cypress. He started the backside by reeling off three birdies in a row and then closed out the round with a 15-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

Colbert, who went to Kansas State on a football scholarship and then switched to golf, established himself as one of the most promising young pros on the circuit in 1967 when he won $25,425 and recorded the lowest putting round of the year in the Jacksonville Open when he took just eight putts on the front nine and only 21 for 18 holes during the third round.

He slipped to 104th on the money list last year when he collected only $12,121, but explained that he believes it was from smoking. "I finally quit smoking about eight weeks ago when I kept getting real bad headaches and I feel great now."

49ers 'Floor' Cal State L.A. in Basketbrawl

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Cal State L.A. learned that it Hertz to try and he hard way Friday night 'knock Cal State Long Beach out of the driver's seat.

The 49ers flattened the 'Diablos, 85-70, in a California Collegiate Athletic Assn. encounter that was more basketbrawl than basketball.

L.A. used its traditional baiting tactics against the 49ers, but in the end the 'Diablos were Cal State's 17th victim in 18 games this season.

The victory, Long Beach's fifth without defeat in the CCAA, was spiced by two fights, including a full-scale donnybrook in the first half.

"You could feel it building," 49er guard Ray Gritton said after the game. "They were rough and happen."

"It" came with 1:28 remaining in the first half when 49er Shawn Johnson rebounded a missed Diablo shot. L.A. forward Don Oldenkamp landed on Johnson's back and the battle began.

There were at least two good punches thrown, one Tolliver. Both hit a Diablo each by Johnson and Lee fan who had come out of the stand and hit Johnson in the back.

"We don't like to fight and we didn't want to fight," Gritton reported. "But I think that is an in-are now. I don't think two dication of how close we before everyone on our punches had been thrown up."

The fight was nearly all the 1,356 sullen spectators in the Diablo gym saw that was exciting in the first half.

"We didn't play very well in the first half," 49er coach Jerry Tarkenton said. "And, they were ready. But, they were rough, too. I was proud of the way the kids fought back. They didn't let anyone push them around."

The tension remained as the second half opened and the contact never really diminished. L.A. trailed the 49ers, 49-47, when Gritton, the smallest man on the court, suddenly delivered the knockout punch.

In the next 4:22, the 6-foot-0, 160-pound junior from Pierce zipped in nine points as the 49ers dropped the Diablos with an 18-2 punch.

Gritton's runningmate at guard, Johnson also got in his licks, scoring six of the final eight points in that burst.

When Johnson dropped in the final basket of the rally after a fast break-

BEARS 'EGGED ON' AT STRIKING CAL

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Cal-Loyola basketball game was delayed 10 minutes Friday night when striking students threw eggs at the players.

About a dozen eggs were thrown onto the court by members of the third world liberation front which is leading the strike at the university.

There were no direct hits but a few players were splattered when the eggs hit the floor. The game was delayed 10 minutes while the court was cleaned.

California guard Trent Gaines, a Negro, did not suit up for the contest and was seen in the stands with members of the front.

Gaines, who started games earlier this season, has been active on the picket line here.

He had no comment but Bear coach Jim Padgett said "as far as we are concerned he is removing himself from the team."

late Laker rally.

Hazzard and Ohl combined for 22 consecutive points to wipe out a nine-point Laker margin in the second period and give the Hawks a lead they never lost.

Th Lakers used 16 final period points by Elgin Baylor to pull to within two points with two minutes remaining. But Beaty hit six points in a row to clinch the triumph.

Hazzard finished with 30 points. Baylor topped the Lakers with 34 and Jerry West added 28.

Jack Kent Cooke, who never ducks a fight, has taken a potshot at a national magazine, Sports Illustrated, for an article it published this week degrading the Lakers.

Cooke, in a written letter to the managing editor of the magazine, calls the story "fiction" and claims since author Frank Deford's "reporting of the facts is so inaccurate, his opinions must be discarded as well.

"I expect you to publish this message in its entirety," demanded Cooke, who has had highly publicized spats with the Coliseum Commission, the city of Inglewood, fellow NBA and NHL owners and Hollywood Park in his short span as Southern California's ranking sports entrepreneur.

Deford's article emphasized five points (although not listed numerically) and none of them praised the Lakers. They were:

1. Once one of the most relaxed teams in sport, the Lakers have become critical of one another and confused.

2. Either Bill van Breda Kolff, the coach, or Wilt Chamberlain, the high-priced and perhaps overrated center, will not be back with the team next season.

3. The Lakers are only a pretty good team with about the same chance to win the championship as last year.

4. The team is dull almost to the point of tedium and Southern California fans are getting bored with them, as evidenced by attendance figures.

5. Despite all the head-aches, the presence of three superstars may yet bring them an NBA title.

While he called the story "fiction," Cooke singled out as erroneous only the fourth point. He also made two other references to lagging ticket sales as false.

Cooke said, "the Lakers' audited total attendance this season exceeds last season's by more than 10 per cent. . . hardly a sign of boredom."

In reply to Deford's statement that "Inglewood city tax records indicate Forum attendance figures are being deflated," Cooke said:

"... Admissions tax records always reflect fewer admissions than the total attendance because of exempt categories which are not required to be reported, such as tickets given to employees, radio and TV, newspapers and magazine reporters — including the two tickets given to Sports Illustrated's local reporter whose gross inaccuracies indicate that he must be among the number of "no shows" at Laker games.

Cooke also countered Deford's statement that "some season ticket seats are conspicuously unused" by claiming that the appearance of season ticket-holders is "up .5 per cent to be precise."

If the magazine replies to Cooke's letter, it is sure to unearth the fact that season ticket sales rose sharply this season, and

Northwestern had its lead shaved to three points.

However, it wasn't until Alcindor made a pair of free throws with 8:20 gone that UCLA went ahead for keeps at 55-54.

Bruins Trail by 10, Then Run Wild(cats)

CHICAGO (AP) — Top-ranked UCLA needed a 35-point performance by Lew Alcindor to bounce back from a 10-point half-time deficit and whip Northwestern 81-67 Friday night for the Bruins' 13th successive basketball victory.

Playing a ragged first half, UCLA didn't take command in the finale of a Chicago stadium doubleheader until the second half reached the midway point.

In the opener, Marquette rang up its 11th consecutive win with a 61-56 decision over Chicago Loyola.

UCLA extended its two-season victory streak to 29 games by finally getting organized against the rugged Wildcats of the Big Ten, who held a 45-35 halftime lead.

Northwestern out-muscled the Bruins in the first half and, with the UCLA line-up cold except for Alcindor, the Wildcats maintained a 10-point lead throughout much of the first half.

In the first half, UCLA lost the ball 11 times compared to only four miscues by Northwestern, which had a partisan crowd of 13,831 whooping while jumping to leads of 18-9, 25-15 and the intermission bluge.

Alcindor popped in eight baskets in the first half and his 18-point intermission total represented more than half of UCLA's output.

Harassed by defensive screening by the rugged Wildcats under the basket, Alcindor did not assume his usual control of the boards until the second half. He finally got scoring assistance in the second half from Lynn Shackelford, whose five-style records, she edged two members of the U.S. Olympic track team — discus thrower Al Oerter and decathlon winner Bill Toomey — for the award announced Friday in New York by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Miss Meyer polled 1,237 points in balloting by sportswriters, broadcasters, amateur sportsmen and AAU officials while Oerter of West Islip, N.Y., had 1,165 and Toomey of Laguna Beach, Calif., 1,110.

The pert teenager was overwhelmed by the honor. "I can't believe it. I'd have to say it's really about the highest honor I've received," she said when informed of the news while at school Friday.

Her coach, Sherman Chayvor, notified her of the award.

"I thought Sherm was putting me on. It's hard to believe. I called mom. She started crying right away. 'I have to credit Sherm . . . and credit my parents.'"

Miss Meyer admitted that her Olympic glory and Sullivan Award winning was just a bit too much too soon for a high school student.

"I think I'll be able to realize what happened this past year later on in life," she said, adding she has a lot of studying to make up.

Laker Woes? 'Fiction'—Cooke

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Jack Kent Cooke, who never ducks a fight, has taken a potshot at a national magazine, Sports Illustrated, for an article it published this week degrading the Lakers.

Cooke, in a written letter to the managing editor of the magazine, calls the story "fiction" and claims since author Frank Deford's "reporting of the facts is so inaccurate, his opinions must be discarded as well.

"I expect you to publish this message in its entirety," demanded Cooke, who has had highly publicized spats with the Coliseum Commission, the city of Inglewood, fellow NBA and NHL owners and Hollywood Park in his short span as Southern California's ranking sports entrepreneur.

Deford's article emphasized five points (although not listed numerically) and none of them praised the Lakers. They were:

1. Once one of the most relaxed teams in sport, the Lakers have become critical of one another and confused.

2. Either Bill van Breda Kolff, the coach, or Wilt Chamberlain, the high-priced and perhaps overrated center, will not be back with the team next season.

3. The Lakers are only a pretty good team with about the same chance to win the championship as last year.

4. The team is dull almost to the point of tedium and Southern California fans are getting bored with them, as evidenced by attendance figures.

5. Despite all the head-aches, the presence of three superstars may yet bring them an NBA title.

While he called the story "fiction," Cooke singled out as erroneous only the fourth point. He also made two other references to lagging ticket sales as false.

Cooke said, "the Lakers' audited total attendance this season exceeds last season's by more than 10 per cent. . . hardly a sign of boredom."

In reply to Deford's statement that "Inglewood city tax records indicate Forum attendance figures are being deflated," Cooke said:

"... Admissions tax records always reflect fewer admissions than the total attendance because of exempt categories which are not required to be reported, such as tickets given to employees, radio and TV, newspapers and magazine reporters — including the two tickets given to Sports Illustrated's local reporter whose gross inaccuracies indicate that he must be among the number of "no shows" at Laker games.

Cooke also countered Deford's statement that "some season ticket seats are conspicuously unused" by claiming that the appearance of season ticket-holders is "up .5 per cent to be precise."

If the magazine replies to Cooke's letter, it is sure to unearth the fact that season ticket sales rose sharply this season, and the best in the NBA but far shy of the figure Cooke expected when he signed Chamberlain to a five-year, $1 million contract. The only setback was when the Lakers gave away free basketballs.

On the reverse side, the Lakers bucked several successful football teams in the fall and early winter. In the last two years they have drawn 28,626, a notable increase.

IT'S LADIES DAY ON THE NATIONAL SPORTS SCENE

THE GALS AREN'T TAKING a backseat in the world of sport, as you can see. Debbie Meyer (far left) and Peggy Fleming (second from right) were award-winners Friday. At far right, Jim Ryun has won the heart of Anne Snider and the couple will be married today. And who ever thought so many peaches would be playing basketball when they hung up that first peach basket? The basketball action (second from left) matched showgirls from Las Vegas against a squad of stewardesses at halftime of an American Basketball Assn. game in Denver. Debbie won the James E. Sullivan Award as the outstanding amateur athlete of 1968 and Peggy was selected the Female Athlete of the Year by the Associated Press. And, if you really care, the showgirls won the basketball game, 3-2.

Vikings Now 2nd in JC Poll

Long Beach City College jumped back into second place in the State Junior College basketball rankings this week, but still couldn't displace No. 1 Cerritos.

The Falcons, defending state champion, were knocked off by LBCC last week, but their 18-2 record is still best in the state. LBCC is 16-3 and moved from No. 5.

The Metropolitan Conference continued to dominate the rankings as Metro leader Pasadena retained its No. 4 rating with a 15-4 over-all record and a 5-0 Metro mark.

Pasadena defeated LBCC earlier this year, but plays Cerritos next week in a game that could jumble the ratings even more. Cerritos has twice defeated Pasadena in pre-season play.

1. Cerritos (18-2).
2. Long Beach (16-3).
3. San Francisco (14-5).
4. Pasadena (15-4).
5. Alameda (15-3).
6. Contra Costa (16-3).
7. Fullerton (14-3).
8. College of Sequoias (13-5).
9. Los Angeles CC (11-4).
10. Fresno CC (10-7).
11. Ventura (12-5).
12. San Joaquin Delta (13-7).
13. American River (12-7).
14. Sacramento (12-5).
15. College of San Mateo (11-7).
16. San Jose (11-7).
17. Golden West (10-4).
18. Hartnell (14-4).
19. Imperial Valley (11-6).

20 Volleyball Clubs Vie Today in Cal St. Open

The 49er gym will be filled with assorted spikers, setters and spectators today when 20 teams chase top honors in the Cal State Long Beach Open volleyball tournament.

Among the stronger contenders to survive the day-long activities are the L.A. YMCA, Westside Jewish Center, Ciscos of Manhattan Beach, the Pacific Coast Club and collegiate power UCLA.

Pacific Coast Club draws UCLA in its opening match at 10 a.m. and L.A. "Y" plays C & H Gold, also at 10.

Spectators are welcome to view the action, which begins at 9:30 a.m. and continues throughout the day. There is no admission charge.

Phillips Swimmer Sets 1,500 Mark

Hans Fassnacht, representing the Phillips 66 Swim Club, set a West German record for the 1,500 meters freestyle in an AAU meet at Pasadena City College Friday night.

Fassnacht's time, in a driving rain, was 16:39.6. Fassnacht, who will be a freshman at Cal State Long Beach, set the standard on the way to a 1,650.0 triumph in the 1,650 freestyle.

CENTURY CLUB GRID CLINIC BEGINS TODAY

Kansas football coach Pepper Rodgers and his two assistants Larry Travis and John Cooper will headline the Long Beach Century Club's fourth annual Clinic of Champions today and Sunday at the Edgewater Inn.

Rodgers will conduct today's opening session at 11 a.m. entitled "Organizing a winning football program." At 1:30 Travis will speak upon "Kansas's running game" and at 3:15 Cooper will discuss "Kansas's varied defenses against the running game."

Sunday's program commences at 10 a.m. In the past Paul Bryant, George Allen, John McKay and Ara Parseghian have handled the clinic.

The career of Cleveland Browns' running back Ernie Green apparently has come to an end as a result of knee injuries.

"Green has been advised to quit playing football," said coach Blanton Collier Friday.

The 6-foot-2, 212-pound Green underwent corrective surgery on his left knee earlier this week. One damaged ligament proved inoperable.

Browns' owner Art Modell added that "in planning for the future we must assume Ernie will not be back and must plan accordingly for the draft next week."

BUSTER Mathis' backers plan to introduce a little pro football strategy into his 12-round match with George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champ, on Feb. 3.

Jimmy Iselin, son of the president of the New York Jets, and boss of Mathis' camp, expects to act as a spotter in the mezzanine with an electronic hookup to Mathis' corner.

"If the pro coaches can spot something from the upper deck," said Iselin, "I figure I might be able to help from the long range view. After all, the worst place to see a fight is from the corner."

WHITEY Ford will join the New York Yankees as an analyst on a number of telecasts this season, supplementing the play-by-play team of Phil Rizzuto, Jerry Coleman and Frank Messer.

The Yankees also have hired Rocky Colavito, retired outfielder, as the team's batting instructor for the parent club during

Barry OK to Play for ABA All-Stars

OAKLAND (AP) — A physician gave approval Friday for Rick Barry of the Oakland Oaks to play in the American Basketball Assn's All-Star Game Tuesday in Louisville, Ky. Barry injured his left knee on Dec. 27 in New York against the New York Nets and has missed 10 games.

Kelly Hopes to Fire Up Kings on NHL Cold Front

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL — If Red Kelly had played his cards right, he wouldn't be wading through snowdrifts in 12-below weather for the sake of fulfilling the Kings' obligation with the North Stars tonight.

New York Ranger coach Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, whose team was running last in the East Division, has gone south for a three-week "vacation."

And now Minnesota coach John Muckler, fired last weekend with his team winless in 14 games and trailing the West Division, has joined him. Muckler and his wife left Friday for a two-week cruise in the Caribbean, courtesy of the North Stars.

The National Hockey League awards a unique mid-season boogie prize but apparently it works wonders.

Meeting the Kings Thursday night after Geoffrion told them he was leaving, the Rangers "won it for the Boomer," 3-1.

The North Stars, operating again under general manager Wren Blair, snapped their slump the same night at Pittsburgh, 3-1.

As for Kelly, the rewards of a third-place coach are grim.

After losing in New York Thursday, the Kings spent all day Friday getting to Minnesota. Their plane was three hours late picking them up at Kennedy Airport, then the team's tickets were momentarily misplaced by airline personnel and finally, upon a frigid arrival here, the Kings' bus to their hotel in town had disappeared.

Perhaps the only hopeful sign is that owner Jack Kent Cooke has gone home to Los Angeles.

The Kings ended a 13-game slump of their own last week with three wins in a row after Cooke left town for the NBA All-Star game.

But when he rejoined them in New York after the NHL All-Star game — puof! — no win streak.

TROTTERS PLAY TWICE AT FORUM

The Harlem Globetrotters make their only Los Angeles appearances of the season tonight and Sunday afternoon at the Forum in Inglewood.

Tonight's tipoff is at 8 and Sunday's at 1:30 p.m. Competition tonight will be provided by the Hollywood Celebrities, an "all-star" team made up of James Garner, Sandy Koufax, Sidney Poitier, Jim Brown, Don Murray and Mickey Rooney. Sunday the Trotters play the Washington Generals.

The Trotters will swing by the L.B. Arena for a game on Feb. 7.

He went five-under with a 12-foot birdie putt on 14 and had a clear shot at the undisputed lead until he bogied the 17th after missing the green. He still had a run for it at 18, but his 10-foot birdie putt stopped just an inch short of the cup.

"It was so dark by then

I couldn't even see the cup," he said.

In the pro-am division, Casper and Michael Bonalack, British amateur champion, took the lead with a best-ball 61. Among five teams tied for second at 62 was Charles and his amateur partner, the "James Bond" of motion pictures, Sean Connery.

Oilman's Widow Dies at 88

Mrs. Thomas O'Donnell, widow of the late millionaire oilman and Palm Springs developer, died in her Los Angeles apartment Friday after a long illness. She was 88.

The O'Donnells lived in Long Beach in the 1920s, and Mrs. O'Donnell held property along the ocean front until 1950, when she sold it to the city for $100,000.

Their home — a three-story, 10-room house on Ocean Boulevard between 19th and 20th Places — was built in 1907.

Mrs. O'Donnell, who was an osteopathic physician before her marriage, was active in charitable and philanthropic cases here, in Los Angeles and Palm Springs.

HER HUSBAND, who had been associated in his early career with such oil pioneers as Edward L. Doheny, moved to Palm Springs upon retirement and owned acreage behind the Desert Inn Hotel. He developed it as the Desert Inn Golf Club, and later donated it to the City of Palm Springs, which renamed it the O'Donnell Golf Course.

Mrs. O'Donnell will be buried in private funeral services at Forest Lawn, Glendale. She is survived by a brother, Dr. B. K. Willis of Newport; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Ruth O'Donnell Davis of Newport and Mrs. Robert M. Connolly of Oakland; two grandchildren, Mrs. Thomas A. Shupp and William Willis Jenney Jr. of Tucson, Ariz., and 20 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Florence Corbrey, wife of Beverly Hills stock broker Carter Corbrey and a member of the Pacific Coast Club in Long Beach since its founding 40 years ago, will be buried today in Inglewood Cemetery.

Mrs. Corbrey died Wednesday after suffering a heart seizure.

For years, the Corbrey's moved out of their Beverly Hills residence each summer and stayed at the Pacific Coast Club.

Services were to be in the Inglewood Cemetery Chapel of Chimes at 10 a.m. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Charles McClung, of Palos Verdes Estates.

All Faiths to Observe YMCA Day

Sunday is national YMCA Day and in Long Beach churches most ministers plan a special service.

Set aside as the annual celebration of the good works by the YMCA all over the world for the past 123 years, YMCA Sunday is a time for church members of all faiths to devote a worship service to the world's oldest youth service organization.

As Rev. C. Leroy Doty Jr., pastor of the Church of the Brethren, 3332 Magnolia Ave., a longtime YMCA booster, put it: "In a day when there is confusion in the hearts of many, how appropriate it is for us to be particularly concerned about our youth and to emphasize YMCA Sunday in our churches. The YMCA continues to be one of the most important character-building forces in our ever-changing society."

"To a troubled teen-ager seeking direction, there is an adult YMCA counselor with whom he can identify. To a youth who needs association with his peers, there is plenty of opportunity through sports, clubs, camping, discussion groups and outings under the guidance of trained leaders."

"Thus, the YMCA supplements and complements the work of the church in the area of character development."

"I urge everyone to attend the church of his choice Sunday to pray for the YMCA and wish it God's speed as it moves forward in its great mission."

Reaching across all frontiers of race, religion and creed and nation, the YMCA works with youth in more than 80 nations of the world through its World Service program.

THE CASE FOR ORTHODOXY

Catholic 'Rebels' Called Heretics by Philosopher

By LES RODNEY

It is completely wrong to describe contending forces within the Roman Catholic Church as "conservative" and "progressive." They should properly be called "orthodox" and "heretic."

This is the blunt opinion of a prominent Catholic philosopher, Dr. Dietrich von Hildebrand, retired professor of philosophy at Fordham University, now professor emeritus, and author of some 30 works, including the recent "Trojan Horse in the City of God," a widely translated best seller. Lauded for his writings by popes, he is considered one of the most formidable U.S. voices for orthodoxy and authority in the church's raging ferment, which hit a new peak with the publication of Pope Paul's birth control edict.

INTERVIEWED this week at St. Joseph College in Orange, where he was to deliver an address, Dr. von Hildebrand did not minimize the extent of disaffection. "The church," he said, "is now in the gravest crisis of its entire history."

"This is so," he continued, "because the heretics are IN the church, and want to remain. In former times, such enemies as Voltaire, Diderot, etc. were at least honest. They didn't claim to be Catholics."

The white-haired philosopher, who left his native Germany with the rise of Hitler, renders his intense judgments without bitterness, though with a animosity that belies his years. Another factor heightening the crisis, he charges, is a one-sided presentation of the issues by the mass media.

"The so-called progressives, some of whom find it profitable to sell their views for publication, not only control some Catholic magazines, but are supported by the liberal non-Catholic press. I believe there is a systematic liberal falsification in the press, which ignores the great mass of loyal men and women in the church."

Dr. von Hildebrand defends without equivocation the ban on artificial birth control. It is his contention that the role of true spousal love has been neglected, and within its restoration lies the solution to any overpopulation problem.

"THE FACT that there is only a period of the woman's time in which she is fertile shows that God did not intend unlimited procreation," he holds.

"The mystery of sex is missed when it is reduced to a merely biological instinct — explained in terms of hygiene or a superficial psychology of self-fulfillment... Sex can only be properly understood as sub-ordered to love. The Holy Father brings out this beauty of love in the encyclical, this great gift that God has given.

"The declaration of the American Bishops, to my great joy, was one of the very best, loyal and understanding. Cardinal O'Boyle in Washington acted wonderfully." (The Washington, D.C. archbishop disciplined 51 priests for their opposition to the encyclical.)

Dr. von Hildebrand calls attention to the earmarking of new funds by the U.S. bishops for research on perfecting the natural "rhythm" method.

The visiting philosopher readily grants that there have been abuses within the Church crying out for correction. His point is that the faults — "ossification, bureaucracy, a dry legalism, wrongful abuse of authority, blunting of conscience, arrogance" — have been secular departures from the spirit of Christ.

"And the response to that," he insists, leaning forward and shaking his finger for emphasis, "the response pleads for MORE secular things, not seeing that was exactly the cause of the problems!" This, he says, is "the classical mistake with regard to an abuse: to lose sight of the value of the thing abused and attempt to do away with it completely."

ACTUALLY, HE argues, "the Second Vatican Council" urged a great liberation in this respect. The Council has been distorted as a call for secular change rather than the renewal of Christian purity. Always in Catholic history all Councils have fought for renewal, against human weaknesses. True renewal is being more faithful to Christ, not less. Which does not mean to return literally to the First Century, that is foolishness.

"This false reaction against abuses... a gut reaction... all the tragedy is in that. Where a secular influence needs correcting, to advocate more secularizing, that is taking the disease itself and using it to make things worse."

Progressives, he says, "are trying to put the faithful in the position of choosing between opposition to all renewal and reform, and a false progress, which can only mean abandonment of the faith. These are false alternatives."

The word "conservative" has nothing to do with it, he adds. "The truth dictates what I do, not my 'conservative' temperament." He smiled and sighed. "The progressives hate me, they say I am a man of the 19th Century, not up to date, and all that."

He sensed many years ago, and wrote, he continued, that "many among us were losing the feel of the supernatural... no more being in love with God, with the saints, those wonderful gifts."

With a sorrowful shake of the head, he spoke of the Dutch theologians who recently proclaimed defiantly they "would not be muzzled by Rome in their research."

"As if theology is chemistry," the philosopher exclaimed. "Theology is based on faith!"

"WHAT IS a scholar? Zero to me, compared to the saints, to the beauty of the supernatural. Certainly, it is nice to also have good scholars, and the Church has always had them, but along with the love for Christ."

This emphasis on keeping the supernatural basis of Christian faith to the forefront against secular influences runs like a threat through all von Hildebrand's works and thoughts. He applies this unhesitatingly to the areas of church social concern.

"Everyone who no longer accepts the absolute primacy of the first commandment of Christ — to love God above all things — and who claims that our love of God can manifest itself exclusively in our love of neighbor is a false prophet. He who claims that all morality reveals itself, not primarily in man's relation with God, but in those things that concern human welfare, is a false prophet."

More subtly, and in answer to a question as to whether this means that Christians should not be concerned with human justice to other humans, he adds:

"He who sees in the wrong done our neighbor only our injury to him and not the offense against God that this wrong implies, has fallen prey to the teachings of false prophets."

Dr. von Hildebrand, however, does not lump together all Catholics who are expressing opposition to Church authority. He sees them as falling roughly into three categories.

"First, there is a group of vicious people, they are simply against the Church. You know and I know there are forces in the world who want to bring down the Roman Catholic Church. These people do

U.S. Religious Heritage Seen in Inaugural Rites

Symbols of faith clothed the event-Bibles, vows, clergymen, bowed heads and prayer. It was the nation's crowning ritual, the their work from the inside.

"SECOND, THERE are those who are pushed by pride. They say they want reforms. They have simply lost their faith, but instead of admitting it and leaving, they want to stay and have their way. Losing faith is between their God and them — but they are harming God's church."

"Third, I would say, are many of good faith who are shaken. Some are reacting — but stupidly — against authority having been abused, and the other faults. Some who should know better are simply naive, like seeking dialogue with Communists. With atheists, yes, but not with Communists. Many are swimming in the illusion that man has come of age. There are nuns who are reacting, but not very intelligently, they talk of their 'day of freedom.' And some priests, very educated, but not in the right way. They need to imbibe something of the true greatness of Cardinal Newman. He, by the way, predicted major trouble ahead, not only for Protestantism, but for the Church."

And what will the outcome be?

Dr. von Hildebrand sat back and considered the question.

"The Church will survive. The great majority is not ensnared, it is still sound. The gates of hell shall not prevail."

"But will there be a schism? I do not know. One should not be optimistic. Between optimism and hope there is an abyss. Hope comes from Christ. Optimism is for one who does not see reality."

inauguration of a president. And by tradition, it carries an aura of reverence.

"We recognize on this historic occasion that we are a nation under God," evangelist Billy Graham said in an invocation at ceremonies installing President Richard M. Nixon. "This faith in God is our heritage and foundation."

It is an intangible element, unprescribed and unprompted by official acts of a government which may neither establish nor hinder men's religion. Yet it is marked in many ways, in motto, pledge of allegiance and national anthem, and especially in high solemnities of state.

It "is the American ideal, born at the time of creation itself," said Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin of Los Angeles in an inaugural prayer. He said it began when God first infused humanity with its yearning for knowledge, goodness and freedom, and it shaped the birth of the United States.

As that country's new president took office, another clergyman, Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos of New York also prayed:

"We humbly beseech thee, O Master of our destiny... endow him with holiness of purpose and with total commitment and dedication so that he may serve thee and thy will for men... Grant him the power to overcome evil with good, injustice with justice, hatred with love... war with peace."

Five clergymen, Protestant, Jewish, Orthodox and Catholic, offered prayers in the course of the inaugural proceedings. Altogether, the intercessions totalled about 2,000 words, interspersed throughout the event, equaling the inaugural address itself, which also was sprinkled with religious allusions.

"In these troubled times of global turmoil and unrest, our Father, we turn to thee," prayed Bishop Charles Ewbank Tucker, an African Methodist Episcopal Zion churchman of Louisville, Ky. "Give to our nation a clear vision of the highest good and our leaders a clear judgment as to how the good may be obtained."

The President took his oath on two old family Bibles, one published in 1828 and the other in 1873, both opened to Isaiah 2:4, the great passage foreseeing a day when nations beat their weapons into constructive tools and make war no more.

Lay Group Backs Groppi on More Negro Priests

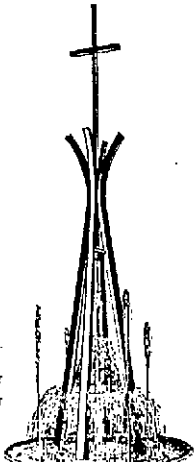

The Los Angeles Assn. of Laymen, an independent group, this week urged support for Rev. James Groppi, Milwaukee civil rights leader, who recently announced he wanted to turn his pastorate over to a black priest.

Tom Rook, LAAI president, said "There are altogether too few black priests in the U.S., and not enough in positions of leadership. For example, there are no black diocesan priests or pastors in the Los Angeles archdiocese."

Rook said he recognized the problems involved in the shortage, but said there must be an effort. "We hope Father Groppi's stand will inspire the Church hierarchy..." he said.

Discover Your Unused Resources

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

People often fold in a crisis, or even in some ordinary difficulty, by failing to use the resources they possess. George Mardikian in his autobiography, "Song of America," relates a case in point.

Shortly after the fall of Germany, Mardikian, world-famous chef and proprietor of one of America's great restaurants, was in Germany at the request of General Wainwright, chief quartermaster for U.S. occupation forces, to advise on food-preparation problems. Accompanied by food service officer Lt. Col. Patrick Buckley, he toured the Army bases. One day the two men visited the big base at Darmstadt.

Evening meal time was approaching and they found the chef in a frenzy. The Army had procured fine apples from Italy. The chef had let it be known that there would be apple pie that night. Now, at the last moment, he had discovered he did not have enough shortening for the crust.

COL. BUCKLEY, with eyes roving the kitchen as he considered what to do, caught sight of some heavy custard cups — hundreds of them — ranged on shelves. "Just how much shortening do you have?" he asked. The chef said he only had about half the quantity he would need. Buckley told him, "Then use your custard cups."

"Custard cups?" "Make little individual pies. Deep-dish pies. Then you'll only need top crust."

The deep-dish apple pie made a big hit. Mardikian comments that what was sometimes needed more than anything else in Army kitchens was "ingenuity." He says that the GI's possibility of being the best-fed soldier in the world depended largely on "this ability and willingness to try new combinations or old ingredients and materials." Resourcefulness was the needed thing.

And that goes for many of the problems life brings you, me, anybody. To be resourceful means to be good at tapping available resources for meeting a particular situation. It means, as the dictionary puts it, to be "fertile in devising ways and means."

When you read about great public figures you often find they are outstandingly resourceful individuals; that is part of their success. An impressive example is the jazz maestro Duke Ellington. Here is a man whose songs rank in popularity with those men like Cole Porter and Richard Rodgers, who has been one of the most popular of American band leaders for over 40 years; who is also preeminent as a composer and conductor of symphonic jazz, having given concerts at Carnegie Hall annually for 17 years and repeatedly performed for enthusiastic audiences in Europe and Japan. A spectacular life, however you look at it, and an immense resourcefulness has had a lot to do with it.

Music critics hail Ellington for "new and unique harmonies," "new tone and coloring," "the voicing of chords in a manner so resourceful that every other arranger of the day by comparison seems harmonically paralyzed."

How does a person develop this creative ingenuity? According to an article in "FM Guide," Duke Ellington declares, "My springboard is the problem. I always consider my problems opportunities to do something... Necessity, in other words, is the mother..."

"For instance, here's a guy who uses a mute, and he finds he can get only seven good notes out of it. The problem is to use those seven."

"WHEN WE first did 'Black and Tan Fantasy' we found there was a muke tone created by using the two horns close to the mike. The problem, then, when we did 'Mood Indigo' later, was to use that muke tone."

Now a lot of us, while admiring resourcefulness in others, often do little to develop the same quality in ourselves. Have you perhaps been struggling unsuccessfully with some disturbing problem? Take a look at your unused resources. You may be surprised.

Make a study of yourself — a real personality analysis — and you're likely to find resources you never dreamed of. And the same goes for your job. Make a fresh analysis of your problems. See the various factors, as many as you can think of. List them on paper. This will help you think more concretely and objectively. Consider different angles. In fact, let the challenge of the problem generate creative ideas. The process of visualizing untapped possibilities creates new approaches.

Glass, ordained since 1936, who has traveled the world instructing delegates at international assemblies, was associated with the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead. He will speak on "Are You Marked for the Time of the End?"

Southern Baptists to Use Prime TV

The Southern Baptist Convention is breaking new ground in the use of television as a medium for evangelism.

At a cost of $175,000, it has produced three half-hour TV programs to be shown during the coming year on prime time, which the Baptists are buying at full commercial rates.

The three color telecasts will be "short on preaching and long on lively music and commentary," according to a Baptist spokesman.

'RESPONSIBLE DRINKING' IGNORED

Urge Churches Study Abstinence Position

By LOUIS CASSELS United Press International

A religious task force asserted this week that churches, in their preoccupation with the issue of total abstinence, have left American society "virtually without any guidelines distinguishing between responsible and irresponsible drinking."

This is a shame, the task force said. It urged churches to repent their sin of omission by promoting open, mature and realistic discussion of the social use of alcohol.

The 38-member task force, created by the National Council of Churches, included persons representative of a wide range of viewpoints. Among its members were a Methodist temperance leader, a newspaperman, at least one recovered alcoholic, theologians, physicians, psychiatrists, and several leading authorities on alcohol problems.

Naturally, they didn't agree on everything. In fact, they didn't even try to settle the long-standing dispute over total abstinence, which some Christians vehemently support and others just as vehemently oppose.

But they did reach the unanimous conclusion that it's time for churches to quit talking about alcohol as if there were only one decision to be made — to drink or not to drink.

As a practical matter, they said, between the moderate alcohol intake of a gourmet who likes a fine wine with his meals and the compulsive drinking of an alcoholic there is "a broad middle range use of alcohol where abusive and destructive drinking patterns have not been explored and defined."

They advised churches to promote study and discussion of drinking in the context of the basic Christian principle of "love for all human beings."

People should be helped to see, they said, that aside from any arbitrary rules or slogans, "certain uses of alcohol inhibit the realization of love for others, foster egotism, release destructive behavior and violence, and negate the freedom for growth and fulfillment promised by God."

The task force said the question every person should answer for himself is this:

"How does alcohol use — or non-use — affect the quality of my relationship to God, to my family, to my community, to myself?"

Although it dealt mainly with general principles rather than specific drinking practices, the task force did say emphatically that "love and concern for others" should stop any Christian from driving an automobile after drinking. As a "text" in support of this admonition, it quoted a U.S. Department of Transportation report that "the use of alcohol by drivers and pedestrians leads to some 25,000 deaths and at least 800,000 crashes in the United States each year."

WALT OLIVER 'Christian Brotherhood'

Black Olympic Athlete to Tell of Brotherhood

Two Negro members of "American Athletes in Action," including a member of the last two Olympic teams, will tell Sunday through their personal experiences that brotherly love is possible between blacks and whites when Christianity is applied.

Bobby Douglas, Olympic team wrestling veteran, former national AAFI champ, and runner-up in the 1966 World Games, and Walt Oliver, former football star, will testify at California Heights Methodist Church, 6150 Road and Orange Avenue, at 7:30 p.m.

"Athletes" is an arm of Campus Crusade for Christ.

Also appearing will be four wives of athletes, who have formed a singing group.

The evening is arranged by the church's Commission on Social Concerns.

Nothing much will happen... except Hymns sung by people who want more than the week's routine... or a Choir Hymn that lifts the spirit above the humdrum... and another sermon, which helps you remember there is more to living than the ragged and of frenzied days. 'Lions Are Free' Was Fascinating

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

"The Lions Are Free," shown Thursday night on Ch. 4, is the kind of a TV show that makes me want to trot out superlatives.

Fascinating is an over-used word, I know, but what else can you say about a show that keeps you entranced and wanting more when it's finished?

"The Lions Are Free" is a sequel to the motion picture, "Born Free," which I didn't see, so I'm not bound by the usual commentary that sequels just don't measure up to the original. In this case, the sequel makes me want to see the original.

Bill Travers, who starred with his wife, Virginia McKenna, in "Born Free," returns to Kenya to see how George Adamson, hunter and game warden who lives on the Kenyan reserve, is getting on with the pride of lions set free two years earlier.

The question is whether the lions, after two years in a wild condition, will get along in a wild state and remember him kindly. They do. The lions are not only free, they are friendly and nuzzle Adamson and Travers in some breathtaking scenes of sheer delight.

IF THERE IS any small complaint I would make about the show it is that the impact of the film goes far beyond the limited stated commentary by Miss McKenna who notes the contrast of the free lions and the lions in cages in London sequences. Somehow, this commentary is not quite up to the unspoken simplicity and forcefulness of the film which is inevitably impressed on the minds of viewers.

It is an idyllic condition under which the free lions live in the Kenyan game preserve. They are not stalked by "big game hunters" and occasionally they are fed by Adamson who brings down a zebra for them.

"The Lions Are Free" makes appeal to some basic yearning in man for an ideal condition where the lion can lie down with the lamb, and I suppose the impact of the show can't be dissociated from the inevitable contrast of conditions in our "civilized" communities where man can't even get along with man.

"STAR TREK" goes off the air April 11 for eight weeks, and when it returns June 10 it will be on at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, the Jerry Lewis Show slot. The Lewis show winds up the season April 15 and will be replaced by a series of specials.

On April 18, the "Star Trek" slot at 10 p.m. Friday will be taken over by Roger Moore in "The Saint."

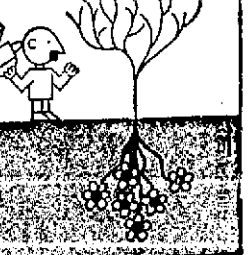

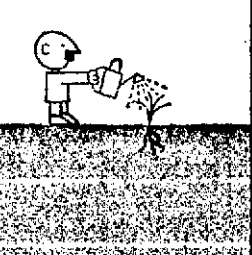

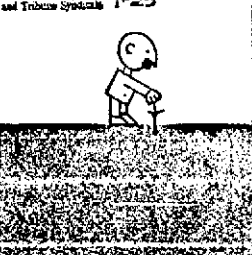

The trade paper Variety, in reporting the shifts, said no decision has been made about renewing "Star Trek" or Lewis for next season.

CBS reportedly is planning to have its schedule for next season ready for announcement by the middle of next month.

THOSE ladies in the audience who miss starting the day with "Exercise with Gloria," off the air for a time, will be happy to know the show resumes at 7 a.m. Monday, Ch. 7.

Graham Will Preach in White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has invited 200 persons, including his official family, to an unusual religious service in the White House Sunday, to hear evangelist Billy Graham preach. Providing organ music is posing a bit of a problem since the White House doesn't have an organ. And, between now and Sunday a Nixon staff will have to produce one for the East Room 11 a.m. services.

This is the first Sunday the Nixons have been in the White House and the President decided to have church services there. In the future, a spokesman said, the first family will "sometimes go out to a church," but the White House services may not be a regular thing. Rev. Graham, a Baptist, is a long-time friend of Nixon. A Quaker, and was one of the ministers who took part in his inaugural ceremonies.

Newsman Charged for Defiling U.S. Flag

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A television newsman who wiped his feet on an American flag will be charged with desecrating the national symbol of a friendly nation, the Cabinet decided Friday.

The incident was filmed by the newsman's camera crew and shown on a state-run TV network as part of the coverage of a socialist organization whose doormat is a soiled stars and stripes.

Leave It To Larry

By LARRY MEDER
HARBOR CHEVROLET

A certain civic-minded but owner was calling a cab for a very tipsy friend. However, while doing so, his friend had left with a companion, leaving the would-be Samaritan very upset.

So great was his concern, he called his friend in the morning only to find he'd been stopped by the police—yet not arrested!

Completely baffled, the saloon-keeper shouted, "Why, George, you mean they let you go? The last time I saw you—you were so gassed you couldn't even talk!"

"That's true," answered George smugly—"but the police seemed satisfied with my answers — it's a good thing that guy I drove home was a ventriloquist!"

Folks, it's a good thing our January campaign at Harbor Chevrolet, 3770 Cherry, is "steamrolling" over higher-priced competition! Why should you pay more... than I can sell it for???

This is what I'll ask you if you ask for me!!! Meder — that is...

ITEMS SELDOM RECOVERED

Car Clouters Net $420,000

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

A bit of pink paint. The Long Beach woman who accidentally brushed it against a car seat wasn't happy at the moment.

But, it turned out to be a bit of luck. That pink paint was the only way to identify seats later stolen from her car. She got the seats back . . .

And, Long Beach police admit — plowing through reams of files on auto burglaries — it doesn't happen that often.

During 1968, reports of thefts from cars poured in at the rate of about 11 a day, adding up to a loss of $35,000 a month — $420,000 a year — in items lifted from the inside and stripped from the outside.

Among the 3,894 reports filed in 1968, a scant 423 — under 11 per cent — include any information police could use to track down the thief or recover the items.

Object of the car prowler's light fingers can be anything — with a preference for stereo tape decks. An average of 1,500 auto tape players are reported stolen every year in Long Beach.

Other favorites are bucket seats and spare-tire-and-wheel combinations, especially from Volkswagens. The list also includes batteries, tools, clothing, cameras, two-way radios.

Once, detectives recalled, the hood and window washer combination was stolen.

Hubcaps? Sure, they're taken, but they're so commonplace and unidentifiable no reports are filed.

The burglars — they're called "clouters" by detectives — are mainly between 16 and 25 years old, according to Sgt. Art Perle, of the auto burglary detail.

Less than five per cent come from so-called poverty situations. Most car clouters come from middle-income, average families, said Patrolman Matt Parrish, onto whose desk a pile of auto burglary reports are dumped daily.

"In most cases, they own their own cars," Parrish said.

"These are opportunists more than anything," Perle said. "They strike any place people park, and are gone for some length of time."

The two prime trouble spots are North Long Beach and Belmont Shore. Generally, open parking areas and carports at apartment houses are favorite targets.

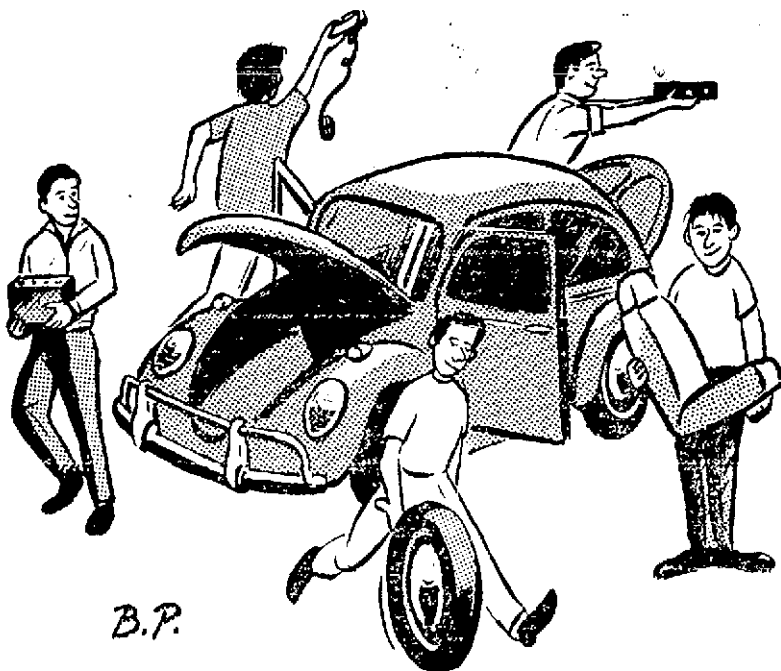

Car clouters find fertile fields in Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach parking lots.

But there are "specialists" — thieves who tread the macadam aisles of hospital parking lots — hoping to find narcotics mistakenly left in a car. "Frequently," said Perle, "we find users have to become thieves to get money for drugs."

Once the clouter has the loot, what does he do with it? "Most of this stuff is peddled right on the street," said Perle. Some is used on the clouter's own vehicle. Some has been recovered from pawnshops and at swap meets.

Some has even been recovered from people who thought they "got a bargain"

Claim Ship That Quit 'Drydocked' Catalina

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

"When the 'Big White Steamer' stopped going to Santa Catalina it put business on the island in drydock, an island spokesman said Friday.

Mrs. Dorothy Hill, director of finance for the city of Avalon, told a hearing before a Public Utilities Commission examiner in Long Beach that business was rougher in 1968 than the channel gets in January.

While the excursion steamer SS Catalina rode at anchor last year, the island hosted 115,531 fewer tourists, and the 90,116 who did visit in 1968 spent $945,043 less than the 205,647 island guests in 1967, she said.

Mrs. Hill was called to testify on behalf of interests seeking to establish more transportation lines between the island and mainland.

THE HEARING was called by Examiner Kent C. Rogers to consider the application of Harbor Carriers Inc. . . . The company, an affiliate of the San Pedro Tug Boat Co., Red Stack — is seeking PUC sanction to operate two converted crew boats between Avalon and Long Beach.

Questioned by James Radcliff, city attorney for Avalon, Mrs. Hill said the total decrease in gross receipts by business in Avalon during 1968 was down 17.5 per cent from the previous year — the last year the 2,000 passenger ship Catalina operated.

She said her statistics were based on sales taxes collected by the state and on an admission tax and a bed tax collected by the city.

Mrs. Hill was the only witness during Friday's session.

Four more witnesses will be heard in Los Angeles, Feb. 18, ahead of the parade of witness protestors to the Harbor application have indicated they will present.

Among those protesting the Harbor Carrier application are Catalina Motor Cruisers Inc., operators of several cross-channel passenger boats; MGRS Inc., operators of the SS Catalina; the Port of Los Angeles; The H-10 Water Taxi Co., operators of a charter boat service; Davey's Locker Inc., operators of the Island Holiday between Newport Beach and the island, and the City of Avalon.

The protestors are attempting to show there is not enough tourist business to financially support another operator.

THE CITY OF LONG BEACH, through the Bureau of Franchises, was opposed to Harbor Carriers' proposal, hoping a more exotic type of watercraft such as a hydrofoil or hovercraft might be used, but subsequently reversed the stand and now remains neutral.

However, Louis Possner, chief engineer-secretary of the franchise bureau stated the city is considering endorsing the plan when the hearing is resumed in February.

Meanwhile a related matter involving the "Big White Steamer" is due to be heard on Monday in Los Angeles with Examiner Rogers serving as the hearing officer.

The hearing will consider a demand from 12 Avalon businessmen that operators of the SS Catalina resume service to the island city.

Top Stars Slated at L.B. Promotion

By FRED HAMLIN
Staff Writer

Hopes are high for a top turnout of performers and audience for the Feb. Long Beach Community Improvement League benefit show in Municipal Auditorium.

Already assured of several big "show biz" artists, including singer Dinah Shore, Skiles & Henderson and the Collage group, the promoters are concentrating on adding to the all-star roster and advance ticket sales.

Proceeds for the event, scheduled to start at 8 p.m., will help pay for CIL programs and help "retire" the mortgage on the League's headquarters at 555 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

George Dillard, program coordinator, said tickets from $2 to $5 are on sale at Humphrey's Music Store in downtown Long Beach, Wallich's Music Center in Lakeview, Tommy Maynard's Soul City record shop, Long Beach, and at the Auditorium.

Group rates may be obtained through Stan Mack, manager of the Auditorium's box office, Dillard said.

Peter Marshall, host of NBC-TV's "Hollywood Squares" show, is booked as master of ceremonies for the fund-raising event.

In addition to Marshall and Miss Shore — the dynamic blonde who won numerous television "Emmy" awards for her TV series — sponsors are hopeful of luring TV star Bill Cosby and the singer-actress, Diahann Carroll, to the benefit show. Long Beach's renowned Arthur Reynolds Singers are lined up for the program.

Thumbs in Red by $97 Million

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Although the "break-even" point in tideland oil production is expected next November, Thums Long Beach Co. still had a $97-million deficit at the end of the 1967-68 fiscal year, City Auditor Murray T. Courson said Friday.

The deficit included $43 million in expenses over income and $54 million in advance royalties paid to the city, which shares them with the state.

In his annual audit of Thums accounts, Courson reported the current estimate is that construction and drilling will be about 90 per cent complete by the end of this fiscal year on June 30.

During the 1967-68 fiscal year, production of crude oil from the Long Beach Unit of the Wilmington Oil Field totaled 29.2 million barrels, according to the audit.

Sales of crude oil in fiscal 1967-68 were 29.1 million barrels, an increase of 16.3 million, or 127.7 per cent.

Total proceeds from sales of oil and gas in fiscal 1967-68 were $70.1 million, an increase of $42.5 million or 153.8 per cent, over the previous year.

Since the start of production in August 1965 a total of 45.9 million barrels of crude oil, with a market value of $101.1 million, was shipped from the Long Beach Unit, Courson said.

As of the end of the 1967-68 fiscal year, the cumulative unit investments totaled $118.7 million and operating costs totaled $45.5 million, making a cumulative unit expenditure of $164.2 million, the audit reported.

Thums Long Beach Co. has had unit expenses of $99.5 million plus taxes and other governmental charges of $14.5 million. This total of $114.2 million is compared to credits from Thums' allocated oil and wet-gas value of $71.1 million, leaving the $43-million deficit.

To this deficit was added the $10-million initial consideration paid by Thums to the city and $44 million in advance royalties. The contractor currently is paying advance royalties of $1 million a month.

The audit included a projection of expenses and revenue which indicates credits will equal charges next November.

NO PROGRESS MADE

Texaco Talks to Continue

A bargaining session Friday between the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAW) and Texaco in Long Beach broke down after 10 minutes, but both sides agreed to resume talks Tuesday.

The session, held at the request of federal mediator Bert Walter, took place at the Elks Lodge, but produced little to settle the strike which has idled union members since the Jan. 4 walkout.

A company spokesman said Texaco offered about an eight-and-a-half per cent wage boost over two years, but the union rejected the offer.

"WE DIDN'T even have a chance to bargain because the union doesn't seem to want to end the strike," the Texaco official said.

"Wages and benefits in the oil industry are among the highest in the nation, according to the federal government, so we don't believe the oil workers are being mistreated by any means," he added.

The OCAW is seeking a 69.5 cent settlement over two years such as achieved at the Union-Pure Oil Co. and Phillips Petroleum Co.

Meanwhile, OCAW President A. F. Gropsiron warned the strike is going to get tougher.

"We are going to hammer harder than ever at those companies who want to try to chisel us," he said in Denver, while reporting "no new progress" in bargaining with oil firms across the nation.

Among firms with which no agreement has been reached are Texaco, Shell, Sinclair, Standard Oil of California, Continental and Standard Oil of Ohio.

Total agreement has been reached with all plants operated by Union-Pure and Atlantic-Richfield. Partial agreement was reached with Mobil, American, Humble, Marathon, Gulf, Phillips and Cities Service.

Some 40,000 oil workers out of 60,000 who struck are still off their jobs nationwide. About 6,000 oil workers are employed in Long Beach area facilities.

Alien Reporting Deadline Jan. 31

Deadline for filing alien address report forms is Jan. 31, George K. Rosenberg, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Friday.

The report must be filed at the nearest U.S. Post Office or Immigration Service office, he said.

Marijuana Raid Nets Prof, Wife

By RUSS MacDONALD
Staff Writer

A California State College professor and his wife face arraignment in Long Beach Municipal Court Monday following their arrest on suspicion of possessing marijuana.

Dr. John H. Sieglan, 29, and his wife, Pamela, 19, of 3415 E. Eight St., four students and a telephone operator were arrested by officers answering a "loud party" call Friday at the Sieglan home.

Sieglan is an assistant professor of English.

Christine Wasmuth, 22, the telephone operator, of 1510 Marine Drive, Seal Beach, was booked on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs, and being in a place where marijuana was used.

The students, all booked for investigation of being in a place where marijuana was used, are Janelle Flaherty, 18, of 5851 State College Drive; Steven A. Stewart, 20, of 719 Main St., Huntington Beach; Richard G. Jones, 23, of 102 Pomona Ave.; and Donna F. Shephard, 18, of 5851 State College Drive.

Twenty-eight persons, arrested in sweeping narcotic raids by Long Beach police which netted 50 suspects, will be arraigned Jan. 29 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Police said the suspects were arrested on grand jury indictments following a four-month undercover probe.

Twelve of the remaining 22 suspects will be arraigned Monday in Long Beach Municipal Court, according to officers, who said the others will be arraigned Tuesday.

Cheese Guard-in-Flushing Meadow Caper

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

When Percival the Cheese Guard walked into Flushing Meadow Travel Agency and demanded, "Take me to America's Mountain of Broken Electrical Appliances", tour guide Alden Eisenhauer knew he'd found the quest for his salvation.

So Alden and Percival, who had guarded the world's largest cheese at the Wisconsin Pavilion of the New York World's Fair, were off to search through 17 states.

On a rural Wisconsin road, they met Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm von Backpflaume and his 1,219-member Human Herd, making their way across the country taking two left steps for every right step, inhaling twice for every time they exhaled and wearing underwear outside the street clothes.

Several of the Herd were harnessed to a huge, gold treadmill on wheels, containing "Our Founder," a haggard but happy man named Zarathustra Smith.

"We're on an exciting mission to find and recover Zarathustra Smith's gold woolen underwear," said Dr. Von Backpflaume. "Are you sure you won't join us?"

"I don't think we'll have the time," answered Alden. "We're involved in a quest for America's Mountain of Broken Electrical Appliances."

But, alas, they never found the mountain — they were sidetracked by the Greater Wisconsin Industrial Booster's Club's plot to blow up the world's largest cheese.

The world's largest cheese? It had already been cut into hundreds of pieces and sold.

"When I found out the cheese had been destroyed, it moved me to tears," says Christopher Cerf, author of the book about Percy and Alden's unsuccessful quest.

The book, "The World's Largest Cheese: An Indulgence," published by Doubleday & Co. was written by the son of famed humorist Bennett Cerf, who insists, "I like cheese."

In a market glutted with heavy-handed moral messages, Cerf's book is enormously refreshing. It's also funny.

"The structure of the book is faithful to the Chaldean Multiple Cow Cycle," Cerf explains. "These were highly-structured fables the Chaldeans told around their camp-fires to illustrate the path of man from innocence through temptation, corruption, arrogance and finally death."

But, pressed on the matter, Cerf concedes there were no Chaldean Cow Cycles.

"At least, not that I know of," he says. "But," he adds, "I do like cheese."

"The book is very much aimed at people who are ashamed to do anything without deep, symbolic meaning," says the former Harvard Lampoon editor.

"You'll notice I make a great attempt at deep, symbolic meaning, but fail completely."

"Everybody nowadays takes themselves too seriously," says Cerf. "This book isn't bitingly satirical. It's meant to entertain."

There is, of course, fun poked at all sorts of things — boosters clubs, deep symbolic meanings, evangelistic crusades, the rash of Albert Ellis sex books, token Negroes, moral dilemmas, Yiddish proverbs, homicide and the law, standpipes, Stan Kann and the world's largest collection of vacuum cleaners, President Johnson . . .

. . . and, of course the World's Largest Cheese, which Cerf insists really exists, just like President Johnson and Stan Kann and other targets of his soft-sell satire.

"The book began as a series of short stories," Cerf says. "Then I looked for the most pretentious possible way to tie them all together."

Finally he settled on an anonymous poem from the non-existent Cow Cycle:

"The animals: the fruit, the girl and/or the dream; and, through it all, the cheese."

"I like cheese," he says.

Cerf, says he thinks his famous father liked the book — although he didn't consult him while writing it. "Well, when he read it, he laughed," Cerf says.

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Receptiveness is the quality which is important to develop. Circumstances bring insight into your own nature, so that next year you will have a similar philosophy. Romantic activities, lesson. Basic issues come to question. Today's natives usually spend much time in contemplation, seldom acting on impulse. Personal interests such as sports tend to be very important.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put in a full, active Sunday with the conventional observance and social amusements. You may encounter a practical idea for improving your earnings and status.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Usually you get back only what you put forth, but this Sunday offers more than most. Friends are available for reunions, the only catch is that you must also early to avoid overdoing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There are so many things to do and so many places to go it's difficult to settle on a direct path through this promising day. Take time to communicate with spirit. Romance promises some odd circumstances, long continuance.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Good cooking, creature comforts are in order since you're doing your regular share of the Sunday services. Gather about you some friends to share amusements. A light show would top it all off well.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 21): Cheer up. Tension is relaxed for the weekend and perhaps longer. Be yourself; make no particular effort to prevail over people around you. You find nearly everybody is able and eager to meet you halfway. Do your part.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 22): Aside from the customary formalities of the day, you have plenty to do catching up with care of your health, meeting new people, and pursuing your romantic ventures in the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Leisure time, when you usually don't have, may be available this Sunday. Use it wisely for meditation, grateful thought. If you have the evening hours free, respond wholeheartedly to an overture of friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Family ties still exist for most of us. Renew yours this Sunday, informally. Take your mate into your confidence, explain your mental processes and their reasons. You'll probably win approbation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Dress smartly, but order simple food on your excursion today. Organize social activities for January, tomorrow night. Make it a long leisurely day and evening of quiet enjoyment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make amends early for any flaws in your behavior yesterday, and get on with a most insipid Sunday. Short trips and visits, and snark on well in the afternoon. Romance is heavy for the evening.

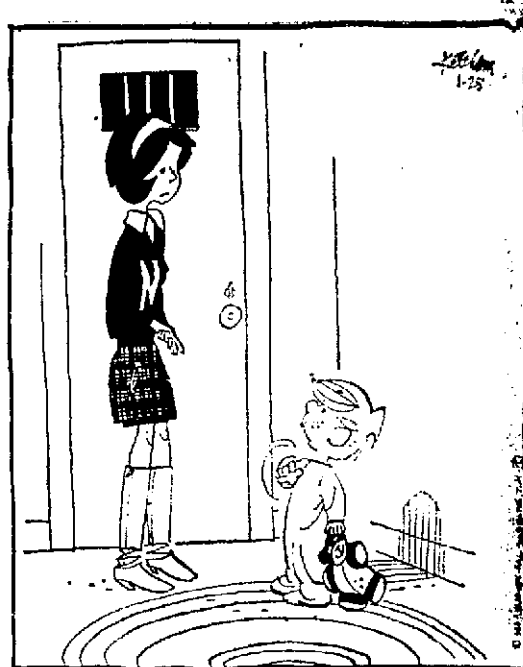

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use the Aquarian ease in the atmosphere to mend your fences among friends and relatives. Find your way to meet the people you need to know. The evening is fine for simple festivities.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Abide by common sense and this can be an extraordinary time for socializing with important friends, close relatives, and meeting new people with something to offer. Include safe driving.
